Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The question is settled as to who is the leader of the House of Representatives—it is HENRY L. DAWES. His speech to-day was a masterly effort, not because it was an attempt to vindicate his first speech, but because it was a fair, honest, clear statement of the case as it stands; doing the Departments the justice to say that, while his figures were just as they appeared in the estimate books, the latter were nevertheless so much more in detail than in former years that they did the Departments injustice. But for that he was not to blame, and, so far as his object and desire were concerned, which was to create increased vigilance in the direction of reduced expenditure, he did not think these differences between himself and the Departments would be serious or important. He was confident that he had the coöperation of the Executive in the work, notwithstanding the self-constituted championship set up by his colleague. (General BUTLER.) The speech was listened to with the most earnest attention throughout, though nearly two hours and a half long. Both parties in the House indorsed it, and there is no longer any occasion for charging Mr. DAWES with enmity towards the Executive and the Departments. He has struck the right chord, which will be felt throughout this session of Congress and save millions to the country.

THE GOLD INVESTIGATION.

The Banking and Currency Committee had a busy session this morning. The following witnesses were before them: A. B. CORBIN, Jos. SELIGMAN, W. B. CHAPIN, and a Mr. SAMPSON, a detective of the New-York Sub-Treasury. Mr. CORBIN arrived last night, and took private quarters in B-street, South Capital Hill. He appeared before the Committee, and occupied their attention for about an hour. At first he was not communicative, but gradually seemed more so, and gave indications that as a witness he might be worked to considerable advantage to the investigation. The Committee did not fairly get him opened to-day, and he is to be the principal witness for to-morrow. On some points he is said to be quite communicative, and to be able to remember very distinctly everything that was said; but on other points he is entirely at fault. Mr. CORBIN had hardly arrived before he was besieged by the self-constituted newspaper investigation committee, but his reticence has thus far baffled the interviewers. Mr. CHAPIN was the messenger sent to GOULD with the letter from CORBIN to the President, at Washington, Penn. He testified that he knew nothing of the contents of the letter, but delivered it to the President and received the answer, "No reply," whereupon he telegraphed, "Letter delivered all right." General BUTTERFIELD, and C. C. NORVELL, of the TIMES, are expected to appear to-morrow.

THE GEORGIA SENATORS.

There is an apparent misapprehension in some quarters as to the future action of the Georgia Legislature regarding the election of Senators. It seems to be taken for granted that the law of Congress contemplated such action. Nothing is further from the fact; and this is so understood by the President and by a majority of the Senate. The law never contemplated an invalidation of all the action of the Georgia Legislature as organized by General MEADE; it on'y provided for the correction of the error made in expelling rightfully elected members in violation of the Fourteenth Amendment of the Constitution. When this is fully done the object of the law is accomplished. And if Messrs. HILL and MILLER, the Senators elect, present themselves they will doubtless be sworn in, provided they can qualify in other respects.

THE FRANKING PRIVILEGE.

The House to-day, by an almost unanimous vote, passed the bill abolishing the franking privilege. It is accompanied by a provision, however, which will excite the ire of the country Press. It abolishes the law providing for the free circulation of newspapers in the county where published, Members were unwilling to yield their own privilege without cutting off that of their home organs also. This is fair, of course, though it rather redounds to the benefit of the city Press.

VIRGINIA.

Virginia is at last fully restored to the Union. The President to-day notified Congress that he had signed the bill, and immediately thereafter Senator LEWIS appeared, and was sworn in without objection from any quarter. Senator JOHNSTON has not yet arrived. There will probably be some scrutiny in his case, as there is some question whether his disabilities are fully removed or not, and his credentials will therefore probably be sent to the Judiciary Committee. In the House four members appeared and were sworn, viz., PLATT, MILNES, RIDGWAY and PORTER. A very sharp and somewhat laughable debate occurred on PORTER'S admission. He is the super-Radical who furnished SUMNER with his facts and points against the admission of the State, and who was convicted of disloyalty by a Military Commission during the war. There were no charges against him in Committee, and they, therefore, had no occasion to go behind his certificate. But the Democrats seized the opportunity to protest, in the most sanctimonious manner, against the admission of such a traitor. FERNANDO WOOD created great merriment by an outburst of loyal indignation at the idea of such a thing, and said he would cut loose from his own party forever before he would vote for the admission of a man so notorious for his disloyalty as PORTER was. Democratic lawyers, like MARSHALL and WOODWARD, however, held that the House could not go behind the certificate on a prima facie case, and he must therefore be admitted, and he was sworn. He does not add to the calibre of the House, either mentally, morally, or politically.

COMMITTEE MEETINGS.

Both the Senate and the House Committees on Commerce were in session this morning, but nothing of importance was done in the former. In the House Committee the subject of Marine Hospitals was considered at great length. There is a proposition before the Committee to place these establishments under proper control and supervision, which, it is stated, is not now the case. Large appropriations are annually voted for their support, and it is made the duty of the Collectors of Ports to see that they are properly managed and conducted. But it is felt that, owing to the manifestly onerous and important duties of these officers, detail is in a great measure neglected, and the result is a loss to the Government of many thousands of dollars. The bill before this Committee looks to an entire reorganization of the whole system, and the appointment of Medical Director, whose sole duty it shall be to see that they are properly managed and conducted. The matter was referred to a sub-Committee, consisting of Messrs. DIXON, CONGER and O'NEIL.

AMERICAN REGISTERS TO SHIPS.

Senator CRAGIN, Chairman of the Senate Committee on Naval Affairs, and Mr. DIXON, Chairman of the House Committee on Commerce, have had several consultations recently on the subject of granting American registers to ships, and both these gentlemen have decided to bring their respective Committees together for the purpose of agreeing on some definite line of policy on the subject. Both Mr. CRAGIN and Mr. DIXON are in favor of the utmost liberality on the subject, from a desire to recover as much as possible our commercial supremacy, and thus promoting the advancement of the shipbuilding interests. There is a large number of applications to naturalize vessels before both Committees, and some important legislation on the subject may be expected during the present session of Congress.

OCEAN STEAM LINES.

The Mediterranean and Oriental steamship project was considered at the meeting of the Senate Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads to-day, but no definite result was reached. There is a general desire, or at least feeling, in favor of subsidizing a line of steamships to Europe among Congressmen, but the great obstacle in the matter appears to be the difficulty of hitting on a scheme which will not ultimately result in taking money out of the Treasury without benefiting the country in any way, or making a single step towards the advancement of the object in view, viz., that of building up American commerce, and in some part regarding our commercial supremacy on the ocean. There is hardly one of the different schemes at present before Congress which is not regarded with suspicion and distrust. It is felt that in nearly all cases the main object of the promoters of these enterprises is to get a sufficient encouragement from the Government to enhance the price of stock, when the original movers of the speculations would sell out at a nice advance on the original investment.

Dispatch to the Associated Press.

NOMINATIONS.

The President to-day sent the following nominations to the Senate:

James Jennings, Receiver of Public Moneys at Cena, Mich.; John Eaton, Jr., of Tennessee, Commissioner of Education, in place of Barnard, to be removed; Hampton Aulick, Assistant Surgeon in the Navy; Lieutenant Samuel S. Wilson, Lieutenant-Commander in the Navy; First Lieutenant H. B. Lowry, Captain in the Marine Corps; Second Lieutenant R. R. Neill, First Lieutenant in the Marine Corps; Israel S. Adams, Collector of Customs at Great Egg Harbor, N. J.; Jarvis H. Bartlett, Collector of Customs at Little Egg Harbor, N. J.; Wm. G. Williams, Postmaster at Watertown, N. Y.; Bruce Johnson, Postmaster at Shelbyville, Ind.

A LIEUTENANT-COLONEL DISMISSED THE SERVICE.

The proceedings and sentence in the case of Brevet Lieutenant-Colonel E. BLOODGOOD, who was recently tried by Court Martial at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, and found guilty of conduct prejudicial to good order and military discipline in having violently assaulted, with intent to bodily harm, Lieutenant O'CONNOR, of the Third Cavalry, and of having confined said Lieutenant O'CONNOR under arrest without sufficient cause, has been approved by the President, and in accordance therewith Brevet Lieutenant-Colonel BLOODGOOD has been dismissed the service of the United States.

COLORED RECRUITS GOING WEST

The Superintendent of the mounted recruiting service at Carlisle Barracks has been ordered to send all the disposable colored troops at that point to Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, where, upon arrival, they will, with colored cavalry recruits now there, be assigned to the Tenth United States Cavalry.

FORTY-FIRST CONGRESS.

SECOND SESSION.

SENATE....WASHINGTON, Thursday, Jan. 27.

Petitions were presented by Messrs. RAMSEY, DRAKE, PRATT, PATTERSON, CONKLING and FENTON for the abolition of the franking privilege. One of the petitions presented by Mr. FENTON contained the signatures of 4,581 citizens of New-York City. Another petition was presented by Mr. FENTON from the trustees of the Seaman's Friend and Retreat, of New-York, asking for Congressional action to secure adequate provisions by the United States or State Government for the support of sick and disabled seamen arriving at the port of New-York. Also a resolution from the Board of Trade, of Buffalo, for the repeal of the income tax.

THE SAN FRANCISCO WHISKY SEIZURES.

On motion of Mr. HAMLIN the resolution relating to the recent seizure of distilled spirits in San Francisco, was taken up. After a short discussion the bill was then indefinitely postponed upon a division—20 to 15.

OMAHA A PORT OF DELIVERY.

Mr. THAYER called up the bill to establish a port of delivery at Omaha, Nebraska. After a short discussion on the expediency of abolishing some of the ports of entry the bill was passed.

VIRGINIA AND HER SENATORS.

The Vice-President communicated to the Senate the fact that the President had signed the Virginia bill.

Mr. BOREMAN said one of the Senators elect from Virginia, JOHN F. LEWIS, was present, and moved that he be qualified. The credentials of JOHN F. LEWIS and JOHN W. JOHNSON, Senators elect from Virginia, were then read. Mr. LEWIS then appeared before the Speaker's desk, when the usual oath of office was administered by the Chair.

THE CURRENCY DISCUSSION RESUMED.

The Currency bill was then taken up, and Mr. HOWE reviewed the various propositions suggested by the Senators who had spoken during the discussion. He asked: Why not take off all restriction and let the people waste all the money they wanted to invest in banking? Our currency would not be endangered if care was taken that one class of paper should be retired as fast as another came into use. The objection to this was based upon the supposition that the people would prefer national notes to bank notes, but the answer to that was, that the good sense of the people would give preference to the best circulation, and that would be the one most readily convertible into coin. If this object could not at once be accomplished, Congress should at least start out on the road that would reach to it. As a Western man, he asked that the West should have the banking facilities which they needed, of which they were deprived by the present grossly unequal distribution.

Mr. SAWYER favored the proposition suggested by Mr. MORTON as calculated to meet the pressing requirements without creating any disturbance of the business interests of the country.

Mr. MORRILL, of Vermont, referring to the assertion that the Northeastern banks had derived an undue advantage in the disposition of the present banking capital of the country, said the circumstances under which the present system was adopted should not be forgotten. It was adopted as a war measure as the only means to sustain the credit of the nation. The law authorizing it went so far as to impose upon the New-England and New-York banks a tax almost amounting to confiscation unless they joined in the new system. The West declined to avail itself of the system, and the South, owing to the war, was not in a condition to avail itself of the banking privileges. It should not now be made a reproach upon the loyal States that the law making the present distribution was then accepted. He would support the proposition presented by the Committee for $45,000,000, on account of its fairness and necessity; and he asserted his opposition to any present increase of that amount.

Mr. MORTON said the proposition to limit the increase to forty-five millions, on the ground that this amount would satisfy the South and West for a year or two, was confessedly a half-way measure. He would rather have Congress grant too much than too little, and therefore proposed the increase of sixty-five millions. If this was not all taken, no harm would result. The addition of sixty-five million dollars, as proposed by the amendment, would make an aggregate of less than one hundred and twenty millions dollars for nearly three-fourths of the entire population, while nearly two hundred million dollars would be preserved to the States with one-fourth of the population. He would ask why it was the South and West were so grudgingly allowed the poor pittance of sixty-five million dollars? It was to the interest of the New-England States to be liberal. His amendment would only take thirteen millions from the States having the largest excess, in case the fifty-two million dollars for which he provided was exhausted. Cincinnati, with a population of two hundred and fifty thousand, and and an immense commerce and manufactures, had $8,353,000 of national bank currency; Chicago, with a population of three hundred thousand, and a commerce only second to New-York, had $5,400,000; Indianapolis, with a population of fifty-five thousand, had $1,620,000; Detroit, with a population of eighty thousand, had $1,575,000; Milwaukee and St. Louis had like proportions; New-York, with about nine hundred thousand population, has about sixty-six million dollars; Boston, with two hundred and fifty thousand population, has forty-one million dollars; Providence, with thirty-five thousand population, had nearly sixteen million dollars; Hartford, with thirty-five thousand population, had $7,062,000. Under the provisions of the bill for the issue of coin notes the banks which might be established east of the Rocky Mountains would, he believed, be used for gold gambling purposes. Referring to the Pacific States, for whose benefit the bill was chiefly designed, he said that financially they had been unfriendly to the credit of the United States, having uniformly rejected our currency, preferring to adhere to gold and silver.

Mr. CASSERLY said that California had never rejected the currency of the Government, but while using lawful gold and silver, they had always been ready to receive paper at its fair value. There could be, he thought, no valid argument against their right to do that.

Mr. CORBETT explained that in the Pacific States, after the premium on gold had advanced, it was very difficult to establish a banking system under the National Currency act. There was but one bank in the State of Oregon, that at Portland, which issued a national bank note. This condition of things was attributable to a coin circulation, and not to any unfriendly feeling toward the Government currency.

Mr. MORTON said the banks there were constantly resisting the introduction of currency from this side of the continent.

Mr. CASSERLY, by way of correction of what he supposed to be Mr. MORTON'S mistake, said the most strenuous opposition to the introduction of paper currency and the exclusion of their own, came from the body of the people themselves. Values in California were gold values, and business was conducted on that basis.

Mr. MORTON contended that the people of California had treated our currency exactly as did the people of Canada; when he went to Canada he had to exchange his money and buy gold, and when he went to California he had to do the same thing.

Mr. CORBETT suggested that upon the same process of reasoning the New-York importers were disloyal, because they dealt on a coin basis.

Mr. MORTON disclaimed having made any charge of disloyalty against the people of the Pacific States, and proceeded to show that here gold was at a premium and paper at a par, while in California gold was at par and paper at a discount. That was the difference. He argued that the effect of the amendment of Mr. SUMNER would be to crease the interest bearing debt $20,000,000, and compel an additional payment by the Government of $8,000,000 annually in interest. He referred to the law which pledged the Government to redeem all the United states notes in coin, which was part of the act pledging the faith of the Government to pay the bonds in gold.

Mr. PATTERSON said New-England had been made the scapegoat in the present discussion without sufficient provocation. She had been made accountable for the stringency of the money market at the West and South. The facts were, that in the first banking act it was provided that $150,000,000 were to be distributed, according to capital and business of the various States. In the next act that provision was left out, but in the act of 1865 it was renewed, because the Government found itself in want of money. Congress did not think it best to issue more greenbacks or legal tender, because by so doing they were interrupting the business of the country, and it was necessary business should continue in order that the war might be carried on. But the Government needed more money, and the money was in New-England, and some provision was necessary by which New-England money could be secured to the Government to carry on the war, and so the State banks were taxed ten per cent. to make the capital in those banks unproductive.

Mr. MORTON remarked that it was necessary to drive the State banks out of circulation, in order to give room to the circulation of the national banks.

Mr. PATTERSON continued, remarking that it was necessary, by crowding the State banks out of existence, to force capitalists of New-England to take this national bank stock, and thus aid the Government. New-England was thus forced to take this national bank stock, and gentlemen should not now come here from the South and West and complain that she had the lion's share of circulation; she had simply done her duty under compulsion. It was not her fault that the South and West had not taken their quota. Mr. PATTERSON proceeded to demonstrate that what was wanting was a radical change in our whole financial system, by instituting a system of office banks.

Mr. SAWYER said he did not complain of the unfair distribution by which New-England enjoyed more than her share of banking capital under the law, but desired to protest against the claim which had been set up here that she was entitled to this undue preference on account of patriotism. He claimed the facts showed that at the close of the war not one-third of the bank circulation had been distributed, and as the law required the distribution of $150,000,000, according to population, the South was then entitled to receive her share, and would have received it had the law had been adhered to. He then alluded to the difficulty to which the cotton planters of the South were subjected in raising money to carry on their operations.

Mr. PATTERSON, in the course of a reply, said that New England having been originally forced to accept this bank stock, South Carolina now proposes to say it should be wrested from her simply because she is making a profit from it.

Mr. CAMERON moved to adjourn. After an ineffectual effort by Messrs. DRAKE and SHERMAN to secure an understanding that a vote would be taken to-morrow (Friday), the motion was agreed to, and at 4:12 o'clock P. M. the Senate adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

By unanimous consent bills were introduced and referred as follows:

By Mr. SCOFIELD—Authorizing the indemnity fund paid by China and Japan to be covered into the Treasury.

By Mr. WASHBURN, of Wisconsin—To establish steamship lines.

By Mr. GUILLAN—Requiring national banks going into liquidation to deposit lawful money in place of their circulating notes, and to take up their bonds.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

Bills were reported and recommitted as follows:

By Mr. JULIAN, from the Committee on Public Lands—To prevent the further sale of public lands, except as provided for in the Preëmption and Homestead laws, and the laws for disposing of town sites and mineral land.

By Mr. INGERSOLL, from the Committee on Railroads and Canals—To authorize the construction of a railroad and telegraph line from Washington City to Cleveland, Ohio, or Erie, Penn., by the nearest direct route.

THE VIRGINIA OATH.

Mr. DAVIS called up the bill introduced by him yesterday, to amend the Virginia bill by construing the word oath to include affirmations. Passed.

RESOLUTIONS.

Resolutions of inquiry were offered and adopted as follows:

By Mr. MOORE, of New-Jersey—As to why Harbor Masters' fees, health fees and State Hospital fees are allowed to be collected at the New-York Custom House, notwithstanding the decision of the Supreme Court that such fees were unlawful.

By Mr. WILSON, of Minnesota—Relative to the improvement of navigation of the Mississippi River, at or near the Falls of St. Anthony. Also as to the reduction of postage rates between Sweden and the United States.

By Mr. BURDETT—As to the building for the Post Office, Courts, &c., at Jefferson City, Mo.

By Mr. ARCHER—As to the subtraction of stamps from the Havre de Grace Post Office.

POSTAL TELEGRAPH SELECT COMMITTEE.

The Speaker announced the following as the Select Committee on the Postal Telegraph bill: Messrs. Washburn of Wisconsin, Lawrence, Dawes, Davis, Palmer, Woodward, Beck.

THE VIRGINIA REPRESENTATIVES.

Mr. PAINE moved that such of the Virginia members as to whose right to seats there was no objection should now be sworn in. Messrs. PLATT, RIDGWAY and MILNES thereupon, came forward and took the oath of office.

Mr. WOOD objected to the oath being administered to Mr. PORTER, and read, as the ground of his objection, the charges and specifications upon which he (Mr. PORTER) had been convicted and sentenced to six months' imprisonment, which sentence he had been approved by Major-General HANCOCK. F. BUTLER, of Mr. PORTER was convicted of declaring publicly, in a tavern at Norfolk, that "this Government was a d—d humbug from beginning to end; that ABRAHAM LINCOLN was doing everything he could for his own election, and that this was a rotten, bogus, corrupt Government from beginning to end."

Mr. PAINE, in answer to Mr. WOOD, sent to the Clerk's desk and had read a telegram from Mr. BUTLER, dated May 5, 1868, stating that CHARLES H. PORTER, in a heated discussion, had used words which, being reported to him, he was obliged to notice. He had, however, omitted all the onerous part of the judgment of the Commission. PAINE, in answer to Mr. WOOD, recited facts, showed that PORTER had not, in fact, been disloyal.

Mr. ROOT remarked that the gentlemen on the other side of the House were frequently making such imputations, and that if men were to be ruled out for such expressions, the members from the other side would rule themselves out.

Mr. ELDRIDGE asked Mr. PAINE whether Mr. PORTER had ever taken back the expression charged against him?

Mr. PAINE said he did not know; he had never conferred with him on the subject.

Mr. SARGENT asked Mr. WOOD whether he was prepared to say that any person should be excluded from membership in the House for having used such language.

Mr. WOOD said he did not believe that anybody was fit to sit in the House who considered the Government of the United States a humbug, or who denounced the President in such scurrilous terms.

Mr. SARGENT remarked that he had simply wanted to get the profession of faith.

Mr. WHITTEMORE asked Mr. WOOD (sarcastically) whether he did not think it better to treat that class of people with conciliation and kindness.

Mr. WOOD—Yes, but not to give them front seats.

Mr. ELDRIDGE—Not to put them alongside the gentleman from South Carolina. [Laughter.] I wish the gentleman from California to tell us what he thinks of such sentiments.

Mr. SARGENT, in reply to Mr. ELDRIDGE, said that he would hazard the opinion that if gentlemen were to be excluded from the House, who could be proved to have used such language, the seats on his left (the Democratic side) would be pretty generally vacant. [Laughter.]

Mr. WOODWARD declared, with some excitement, that the assertions of the gentleman from California were slanderous.

Mr. PAINE resumed the floor, and insisted on the previous question.

The previous question having been seconded, and the main question ordered, Mr. HOLMAN moved to reconsider the vote ordering the main question, which motion gave him the right to the floor for an hour. He divided his time among members on both sides. An excited discussion ensued, which was participated in by Messrs. Holman, Smith of Oregon, Beck, Voorhees, Sargent, Cox, Mayham, Woodward, Butler of Massachusetts, Wood, Morgan and Eldridge.

Mr. HOLMAN reminded the House of the exclusion of Messrs. YOUNG and BROWN, members elect from Kentucky, on the pretence of their having used expressions that were regarded as disloyal.

Mr. VOORHEES said that there was no reason against PORTER being sworn in, as he held that the House had no power to make the inquiry into his record if his constituents sent him here.

Mr. SARGENT recalled the fact that during the last Congress Mr. WOOD had been censured by the House for declaring, in a speech, that he would vote against "this most infamous bill of a most infamous Congress," and asserted that the Democratic Party had, from the beginning of the rebellion, thrown its influence in the scale against the Government.

Mr. COX declared that that statement was not true. He was in Congress at the breaking out of the rebellion, and was among the first, if not the first, to denounce secession. The great body of the Democrats had stood by DOUGLAS and the Union. If all those who made expressions against the Union before the war were excluded from the House half the seats on the other side would be empty.

Mr. SARGENT repeated that the Democratic Party of the North had not been during the war in sympathy with the Government. A Democratic President, a Northern man, had sent a message to Congress, stating that he had no power to coerce a State, and in that he had been fortified by Attorney-General BLACK, a Northern Democrat.

Mr. MAYHAM made a remark as to the editor of the New-York Republican paper advocating the right of secession. At this time the confusion and excitement had increased to such an extent that the Speaker had to resort to strenuous use of the gavel, and to request members to resume their seats. Order having been restored, Mr. WOODWARD said he rose to reply to the slanderous charge made against the Democratic Party by the gentleman from California. If the Democratic Party of the North had not recruited the army of the Union the Southern Confederacy would now an accomplished fact.

Mr. BUTLER, of Massachusetts, reminded the other side of the House of the amount of joy in Heaven over one sinner that repenteth. As to the rank and file of the army having been chiefly Democratic, he agreed with the gentleman from Pennsylvania, (WOODWARD,) but the soldiers changed very soon. He had himself a body guard of one hundred and one from Pennsylvania, and without a word from them they all voted for Mr. LINCOLN, except the trumpeter, and he had been court martialed that morning for being late in sounding the reveille. He voted for McCLELLAN. [Laughter.]

Mr. WOOD considered this a good opportunity to test the consistency of the other side, and to present the pusillanimous failure to their own lips. He did not, however, agree with the members on his own side that the House would not be justified in inquiring into the record of a member elect. He would not sit here with an enemy to his country.

Mr. ELDRIDGE, referring to Mr. BUTLER'S quotation as to the joy in heaven over repentant sinners, said he could not help but think that there was no gentleman on the floor of the House who could create such a thrill of joy in heaven as the gentleman from Massachusetts, by repenting. [Laughter.]

The motion to reconsider was finally laid on the table by yeas 150, nays 5, and Mr. PORTER was sworn in as a member from Virginia.

THE FRANKING PRIVILEGE.

Mr. FARNSWORTH, from the Post Office Committee, reported a bill to abolish the franking privilege, and asked to have it made a special order.

Mr. CULLOM—I hope it will be put on its passage now.

Mr. HOLMAN—No objection to that.

Mr. ORTH—Let us pass it now.

The bill was read.

It repeals all laws giving to any officer or department of the Government, or other persons, the right either to send or receive through the mail, free of postage, any letter, document, or other mailable matter. Section 2 provides that the act shall take effect on and after the 1st of July, 1870.

Mr. CULLOM—I hope the bill will be put on its passage at once, without any speeches.

Mr. INGERSOLL—Let that be done.

Mr. STEVENSON suggested an amendment to strike out the second section.

Mr. FARNSWORTH said he desired to have the bill made a special order for Tuesday next.

Mr. CULLOM said there was no objection to putting on its passage at once.

Mr. HOLMAN and others—None whatever.

Mr. STEVENSON—Let us pass it, and be done with it.

Mr. FARNSWORTH—Very well; the bill is before the House. I move the previous question on its passage.

The previous question was seconded, and Mr. FARNSWORTH having an hour to advocate the bill, parceled out the time, which was occupied in a discussion upon the question, participated in by Messrs. Farnsworth, Logan, Getz, Butler of Massachusetts, Benton, Beck, Ward, Laflin, Judd, Eldridge, Ferris, Hill, Cox, Wood, Potter, Whittemore, Ingersoll, Conger and Ela.

Mr. BUTLER, of Massachusetts, inquired whether the bill would cut off free newspapers.

Mr. FARNSWORTH—It does; it cuts off everything.

Mr. BUTLER—All right. [Laughter.]

Mr. FARNSWORTH said he concurred with his Committee in reporting the bill, but not for the reason given by the Postmaster-General. He did not believe that the Post Office Department was going to make a saving of $5,000,000 by the abolition of the franking privilege, or anything like it. He did not think that the mails would be carried for much less than they were carried now. The main reason why he was in favor of abolishing the franking privilege was that he thought the effect would be to abolish the stupendous amount of public printing done by order of Congress. No more heavy books and documents will be sent free through the mails, and therefore they would not be printed. It was generally supposed that members of Congress made a good deal of popularity and respect for themselves by sending books and document to their constituents. That was a mistake. Take, for instance, the Agricultural Report, the most popular document printed by Congress. Each member had 800 copies for distribution among his constituents. He had himself about 25,000 votes, and he did not understand why 24,200 of them should be taxed to supply 800 of them with that book. So it was with every other book printed.

Mr. LAFLIN, Chairman of the Committee on Printing, remarked that the gentleman from Illinois, (Mr. FARNSWORTH,) had made the strongest point he could make in favor of the bill when he said it would lessen the public printing; but he could not sanction the statement that it would effect a saving of $1,000,000, or near such a sum of money in that way. He wished to say and to proclaim to the country, in behalf of a much-abused Congress, that the real fact was, Congress was being held responsible all over the country for expenditures that are made beyond and outside of the vote authorizing the public printing. The last report of the Congressional Printer showed that the amount of printing, binding, lithographing and engraving ordered by the House of Representatives the last year was $440,429, and of that amount over $350,000 were expended on three book—the Agricultural Report costing a little over $100,000, the Mechanical Report a little over $200,000, and the Globe the balance. Could the farmers of the country say that Congress was extravagant in paying 62 cents a volume for the Agricultural Report? The printing for the Senate cost $119,000, and when those two amounts, $440,429 and $119,000 were added together, they showed the cost of the public printing for the two Houses. He was asked by the Chairman of the Committee on Appropriations if he could tell how much the printing of the Departments had cost. He had not the figures at hand, but he would venture to make the statement in round numbers that the printing for the Departments for the same time was between $600,000 and $900,000.

Mr. JUDD—What is the total cost of printing?

Mr. LAFLIN—Some where near $1,700,000.

Mr. WOOD made the point of order that under the rule no member should vote on any question in which he had an immediate and personal interest. [Laughter.]

The Speaker overruled the point of order.

Mr. INGERSOLL inquired whether the bill cut off free exchanges of newspapers?

Mr. FARNSWORTH replied that it did. It did not require the prepayment of postage on newspapers, but it did require the payment of postage on all newspapers and all letters.

Finally, the discussion was closed and the bill passed—yeas 174, nays 24, as follows:

Mr. CHURCHILL, from the Committee of Elections, reported a resolution that H. D. FOSTER was not entitled to a seat from the Twenty-first Congressional District of Pensylvania, and that JOHN COVODE was, and gave notice that he would call up the resolution for action next Tuesday.

THE APPROPRIATIONS—MR. DAWES TO MR. BUTLER.

The House at 3:30 o'clock went into Committee on the Whole, Mr. CESSNA in the chair, on the Legislative, Executive and Judicial Appropriation bill.

Mr. DAVIS addressed the Committee in reply to Mr. BUTLER'S speech of yesterday, undertaking to prove that his own speech, which had been arraigned yesterday, was made on a fitting occasion; that the speech was true, and that it was proper that he should make it. He had been charged with having, with his eyes open, prostituted his official position to the benefit of the Democratic Party, and to the sacrifice of his own credit. His first speech was delivered upon a bill involving a great public work, involving immediately, as he thought, and ultimately certainly, the expenditure of a large sum of public money. If he had been charged with the duty, in company with eight other members of the House, of taking care of the public expenditures, and it had been the opinion of that Committee that that was a proper occasion, through one of its members, to express to the House the reasons of its objection to the bill, and it had fallen to his lot to give utterance to those reasons. He stood to-day, after more than a week since its delivery, to submit to the judgment of his peers; that not only was it a fit reason for delivering the speech when he did deliver it, but what he uttered was, in all essential and important particulars, the truth. Mr. DAWES then proceeded, with the book of estimates in his hands, to refer to item after item of the estimates of the various Departments, and to show that his original statement in regard to the excess of estimates over the appropriations of last year were in every respect correct. Passing on from the figures he said: I should rejoice as much as any man at any development going to show how much the people of this country have been relieved of the burden of taxation by a reduction of expenditure since ANDREW JOHNSON left the Presidential chair. But the question that I was investigating, and the inquiry that I was putting to the country was, whether as between this year and the next year, the tendency of expenditures was upwards or downwards, and I feel it a duty for me to contribute what was in my power, if I thought I saw that the tendency was upwards, to induce those who are responsible in these halls in the administration of the Government, to so manage public affairs that the tendency should be downwards, not upwards. Now, Sir, figures may be piled upon figures, "Ossa upon Pelion," mountains high, to show the difference between ANDREW JOHNSON'S administration in that regard and the first year of our Administration; but they do not rest upon my shoulders. Broadsides may be fired from that point of view, but the missiles will fall harmless at my feet; for there is nothing in all that I said that had any reference whatever to the estimates of ANDREW JOHNSON'S Administration, or to the appropriations and expenditures in his Administration. We have been told that the estimates for last year were made by Mr. JOHNSON'S Administration in a spirit of hostility to the incoming Administration; not for what Mr. JOHNSON would carry on the administration for, but what General GRANT should carry it on for; and that in such a fit of economy, the estimates were cut down so as to embarrass the incoming Administration; and that was said by one who was himself a party in the Committee on Appropriations, further to embarrass this Administration by putting down these estimates $20,000,000. [Laughter.] The truth about that statement is that nobody ever heard of it until yesterday. If anything is a test as to whether the tendency to expenditure is upwards or downwards in the Departments, it will be found in the two items for salaries and contigent expenditures. The excess of estimates over the appropriation for the present year for these is as follows:

|---|---|
| Executive Department proper | $940,000 |
| State Department | 38,520 |
| Treasury Department | 259,040 |
| Department of the Interior | 88,868 |
| Department of War, less | 56,670 |
| Navy Department | 56,670 |
| Agricultural Department | 64,630 |
| Post Office Department | 30,800 |

The total excess of estimates for salaries and contingent expenses for those Departments over the appropriations of this year are $528,468. Take another illustration. Take the Navy Yard of Washington and imagine how many officers of the navy, independent of civil officers, it requires to take care of it. Here Mr. DAWES read the list of officers employed in the Washington Navy Yard, stating that the number was twenty, and that the amount of their salaries was $42,689. Besides these the salaries of the civil officers who helped them to take care of the Navy Yard amounted to $48,946; making a grand total of salaries for the Navy Yard of Washington $91,635. He enquired whether eight or ten thousand dollars properly distributed in a private yard would not be more effective for the purposes of the navy? Speaking of Admiral's yachts, he asserted that they cost each of them $2,500 a day. If this $2,500 a day were taken and used for building up the mercantile marine of the country, it would tend to encourage trade and enterprise and commerce instead of being a mere waste and useless flummery. Referring to the suggestion made yesterday by Mr. BUTLER that he (DAWES) should have gone to the Departments to inquire into any supposed errors, he was compelled to say just what had transpired, and the country would judge from it whether he had been unfair or unjust. When the estimates were put in the hands of the Committde on Appropriations, the Departments were allotted among the nine members of the Committee, and he would say here that the Democratic members of the Committee were as faithful as any of them in the discharge of that duty. With these balances staring them in the face, the members of the Committee were charged with the duty of visiting all the Departments and seeing where the estimates could be cut down. The Interior Department and the Treasury Department had fallen to his lot. The other Departments were distributed among the other members of the Committee. Eight of the nine members of the Committee had spent the three weeks of holiday in that work, and had been constant visitors at the Departments. He, himself, had visited, according to the charge imposed upon him, the Interior Department and the Treasury Department, and when one of the Committee had to go home, he had taken off his hands the War Department. The other members of the Committee had visited every other Department, and portrayed their balances to them, and they had each reported to the Committee that they were sorry for the balances, but that for that Department the estimates could not be cut down. It was due to the Secretary of the Interior to say, that while he said it was impossible to cut down the force in his Department, he could curtail expenditures outside—in the Hospital for the Insane, in the Deaf and Dumb Asylum, and in the Women's Lying-in Hospital. [Laughter.] At that same time, when the Secretary of the Interior could not cut down the estimates for his Department, there was a single bureau there

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

In your issue of Jan. 30 you give a statement in regard to the "Alexander Mystery" which contains certain matters of fact. Mrs. Burke, who, by quite another name, has been brought to the notice of the public by the mysterious disappearance of her husband, Burke, about eight years ago, has been living in constant fear of arrest, and has been compelled to employ counsel and detectives at a large expense, and has been subjected to many annoyances, all of which could have been avoided if she had been willing to make a statement of the facts in the case. Mrs. Burke has been entirely innocent of any connection with the disappearance of her husband, and has been willing to make a statement of the facts in the case, but has been advised by her counsel not to do so, as it would be used against her. Mrs. Burke has nothing to conceal, and is willing to make a statement of the facts in the case, but has been advised by her counsel not to do so, as it would be used against her. Mrs. Burke has been entirely innocent of any connection with the disappearance of her husband, and has been vail vs. Woodworth, 31 N. Y., 385.) The liens in this case, as in all others, must, to cause cancelling the County Clerk to discharge them is necessary. But even if it were otherwise, the Court can no power to make such an order.

Section 29 of the act specifies in what cases liens may be discharged, by order of the Court and otherwise, but does not include the one under consideration. By section 11 no power is conferred on any Court to order a lien to be discharged, but all liens not continued by order of the Court, as in said section provided, are absolutely discharged after one year by the mere effect of the statute itself, without any other act or proceeding. My attention has been called to a decision of Judge Daly, in the case of Jones vs. Poe, (not reported,) which, it is claimed, is decisive of this question. From an examination of the papers on file in the Clerk's office it appears that it is a case in point, and that the learned and able Chief Judge did make such an order therein as is now asked for. But I am informed that it was formerly the practice to grant motions of this kind, and it seems that the point was not fully considered when the order referred to was made. I may add that I have consulted with my two associates, Judges Daly and Van Brunt, and am permitted to say that they both concur in the conclusions which I have arrived at in this case.

The motion must be denied.

Niles and Bagley for motion; Francis Byrne opposed.

Gold opened with some firmness this morning, and sold up to 122⅜122½ ₱ cent., but the market weakened before 12 o'clock, and later in the day the price fell off to 121½121¾ ₱ cent., closing ¼ ₱ cent. lower than last night. There was no particular influence at work either way, but the buyers for the rise were, to all appearances, less confident than yesterday. The Customs demand for Gold to-day reached the large sum of $762,000.

The public funds were fairly supported on a moderate amount of business, the market closing quiet on the basis of 114¾@114¾ ₱ cent. for the 5-20s of 1867. The Southern State Bonds were weaker for new Tennessees, and again strong on Virginias, of which the sellers at the recent advance are not numerous.

In the Railways the movement was strong and active on the Vanderbilt stocks and in Chicago and Rock Island, the latter making another advance of 2@2½ ₱ cent. on yesterday's excited sales. On the other hand, the Northwest and St. Paul stocks were indifferently supported, and Northwest Common not supported at all, the sales being pressed down to 71@71½ ₱ cent. The Pacific Railway Gold mortgages, both Unions and Centrals, are on the advance, the inquiry being quite active at 85½@⅔ for Unions and 94½ for the Centrals. There was a recovery of 2 ₱ cent. in Pacific Mail shares.

Money was easy and cheap at 5@6 ₱ cent. to the Brokers. The Foreign Exchanges not so firm as yesterday. London, 109@109¼; Paris, f.5.17½@f.5.18¾ to the dollar.

After the late Boards the following quotations were made as compared with Wednesday night:

The Mercantile Mutual Marine Company report of their business for 1869, that their earned premiums are $1,002,661, and their losses, expenses, &c., $718,144. Out of the balance they have paid $91,724 cash to stockholders, and $119,848 to policy holders as the equivalent of Scrip dividends. The present assets of the Company are $1,427,380, of which $404,826 are in United States and other Stocks; $499,000 in premium notes and $300,000 in Security notes.

The following from the editorial columns of the Evening Post relates to the loan of Messrs. TURNER BROTHERS, for the Danville, Urbana and Pekin Road:

The Danville, Urbana, Bloomington and Pekin Railroad, of Illinois, it is announced will be finally opened for business on the 1st February. Over one hundred miles, out of a little more than one hundred and seventeen and a half, are completed, and the rails on the remainder are being laid as rapidly as the weather will permit, while cars, locomotives and other equipments, sufficient to meet the immediate requirements of business, have been purchased and are ready for work.

This road was projected originally to accommodate the local business of the part of Illinois which it penetrates, but the completion of the Pacific Railroad, and the ever-increasing pressure of Western produce upon the channels which bring it to the markets, opened up new possibilities for such East and West roads as could effect the necessary connections, and gave a general commercial importance to the Danville and Pekin line. A consolidation was effected with another short road constructing between Danville and Indianapolis, and a continuous line 212 miles in length, extending from the latter place directly across Central Illinois to the City of Pekin, was placed under the control of one company.

Indianapolis, as will be seen by a glance at the map, is the centre to which nearly all the great roads from the Atlantic seaboard converge; and here the new line will connect by one route with Boston, by three with New-York and Philadelphia, and by the Baltimore and Ohio Road with Baltimore. At Pekin, also, its Western terminus, it communicates by two separate routes with the Union Pacific at Omaha, and thus forms an important link in what will probably be recognized as one of the shortest routes from San Francisco to the Atlantic cities.

It will exercise an important influence upon the development of the fertile and populous portion of Illinois, which it traverses, but we naturally lose sight of local interests in looking at new railways, particularly as they are Western railways, and mark their bearing upon the great problem of furnishing a market to the produce of our agricultural States.

The Erie Railway.

From the London News, Jan. 14.

To the Editor of the Daily News:

SIR: The files of the American correspondence give particulars of the action, "RAMSEY vs. FISK, GOULD and Company," giving some further disclosures of the characteristics of the "Erie Railway Ring." This case was heard before Judge BALCOM, who has, by his decision, still further strengthened the position of the present Board of Directors, much to the disappointment and indignation of the shareholders. There is no doubt of Judge BALCOM's remarks, however, which at one point in this and other cases of almost a similarly unfortunate position, "That shareholders who will not look after their own interests out of Court should not come into Court for favors or orders, and that they were to blame if bad directors were chosen." He added, "if a majority of shareholders of the Erie Railroad Company prefer to have immoral men or speculators for directors, they had the legal right to elect them." It appears that there is the great fault in shareholders not looking after their own interest in the quarter they should. Of the $70,000,000 of shares issued, I do not know how large a portion is held in Europe, but have reason to believe it is very great. On examining the shares I hold, I find they are issued in certificates of ten shares of $100 each, many of which are registered in the name of some of the clique. I will take some now before me, in the name of SMITH, GOULD, MARTIN, & Co." dated 19th August, 1868. On the back of these certificates is printed the following:

"For value received, do hereby sell, assign, and transfer to —— ten shares, $100 each of the capital stock of the Erie Railway Company standing in —— name on the books of the said Company, and represented by the within certificate, and do hereby irrevocably constitute and appoint —— attorney, to transfer the said stock on the books of the said Company, in such form and manner as may be necessary or be required by the regulations of the said Company in that behalf, and with full power of substitution in the premises.

SMITH, GOULD, MARTIN & CO.

Dated Aug. 19, 1868.

In the presence of JOHN H. WILSON.

It will be seen that the transfer is dated the same day as the certificate is issued, and is signed by SMITH, GOULD, MARTIN & Co., who compose a portion of what is termed the "Erie Ring," and is witnessed by J. H. WILSON. A blank space is left to fill in the name of the purchaser, and he wish to have the certificates transfered into his own name, but it has not been the custom to have this done, as it is much more convenient to pass the certificate from hand to hand. Of 2,000 shares held by me, all are in this position; the result is, as I have above described, that although I am proprietor of 2,000 shares, they stand in the name of other individuals on the books of the Company, who have the right, I suppose, to vote on them. I am inclined to believe that nearly all of the large amount of shares floating in Europe is in a similar position as the stock in my possession. Is it not worth while inquiring whether or not all the shares issued under the Fisk management in 1868 and since are in their names? And if so, have they not actually voted themselves into power, or retained their position by representing the property of others? And is not that the true reason why the Judge can say "if shareholders will not look after their own interest they must take the consequences?"

This mode of passing the certificates from hand to hand without registration has been adopted in order to avoid the risk and trouble, as well as the delay, occasioned by sending to America to have them transferred. As a highly respectable committee has been formed to represent in some measure the English shareholders of Erie stock, cannot they suggest some course whereby these proprietors can represent their holdings, or, at any rate, name those in whom they have no confidence from doing so? Is it impracticable for the Committee to act as trustees, into whose hands all the shares in this country can be deposited, to be sent to New-York for transfer out of the names of their enemies into those of persons who can represent them faithfully? Could not the trustees, in place of the shares temporarily intrusted to them for transfer, issue certificates which could be dealt with on the Stock Exchange in the usual manner? I merely throw out these suggestions to influence my fellow-shareholders to give the whole subject serious consideration, to control their own property, if they will but take it. I intend to do so. They cannot, however, expect to succeed in obtaining justice if they allow their property to remain in the name and under the control of the very men of whom they have so much reason to complain. It is also the manifest duty of the European shareholders to take some effectual means to prevent FISK, GOULD & Co. from continuing to send shares to this country standing in their own names, transferred in blank, and then having them stamped by the Committee, thus still flooding the market, and carrying on the old system of voting at the meetings of the Company in virtue of shares which are no longer in their possession. I am, &c.,

NEWS OF THE DAY.

EUROPE.

An exciting debate took place yesterday afternoon in the French Senate, on the question of renewing the Anglo-French commercial treaty, which expires in February. M. THIERS denounced the Ministry, and called on the majority to overthrow them....The subject of an international coinage was discussed on Wednesday in the French Senate. A gold coin of the value of twenty-five francs was urged as the universal standard....The DUC DE BROGLIE, a member of the Orleanist family, died in Paris on Wednesday, at the age of 85 years....The troops sent to La Creuzot are returning, quiet having been established. Englishmen are accused of inciting the workmen to strike....The reported death of the Pope is denied in a dispatch from Rome. Colonel D'ARGY, Commander of the Antibes Legion, died in Rome on Wednesday.... A London dispatch says that Erie shares held there have in a large measure been stamped by the "Shareholders' Protective Union," and a representative is to leave for New-York soon to vote on the stamped shares in the interest of the holders....The latest classification of the newly-elected members of the Spanish Cortes, as far as the returns go, is: Progressists, 18; Republicans, 4; Unionists, 3; Absolutists, 1.

CONGRESS.

In the Senate yesterday a number of petitions were presented, among them one from the trustees of the New-York Seamen's Friend and Retreat, asking Congressional action in regard to sick and disabled seamen arriving at this port. The House joint resolution to prevent the giving or receiving of official presents was passed. Action on the question of the seizure of whisky in San Francisco, after some debate, was indefinitely postponed. The bill making Omaha a port of delivery was passed. The credentials of the Senators elect from Virginia were read, and one of them, Mr. LEWIS, appeared, and took the oath of office, after which the currency discussion was resumed, and continued for the remainder of the session. At 4:12 P. M. the Senate adjourned.

In the House, among the bills introduced was one requiring national banks going into liquidation to deposit lawful money in place of their circulating notes, and to take up their bonds. Several bills were reported from Committee and recommitted. A number of resolutions were offered: one asking why, notwithstanding the Supreme Court decision, Harbor Master, Health and State Hospital fees were allowed to be collected at the New-York Custom House. Several members of the Virginia delegation were sworn in and took their seats. Mr. WOOD objected to the oath being administered to Mr. PORTER, on the ground of disloyalty; and thereupon a long discussion, entirely of a partisan character, followed, which resulted in nothing, Mr. PORTER being allowed to take his seat. Mr. FARNSWORTH reported a bill for the total abolition of the franking privilage, to take effect July 1. The bill was immediately put upon its passage, and after an hour's debate passed by a vote of 174 to 14. The Appropriation bills were taken up, and Mr. DAWES made a long speech in reply to that of General BUTLER, delivered the day before.

THE STATE LEGISLATURE.

In the Senate, yesterday, a bill to incorporate the City of Yonkers was reported; also the Clerk's Additional Compensation bill and the Canal General Appropriation bill. The bill relating to the Wyoming County Surrogate and amending the act of incorporation of Potsdam village were passed. The bills amending the Charitable Societies act and providing for the additional compensation of clerks were ordered to a third reading. Among the bills introduced were a Lexington-avenue Railroad bill, and a bill to ascertain the amount of money illegally collected by the Health Commissioners and to provide for "refunding" the same. In the course of debate on the resolution of inquiry as to the authority for the extra charge in sleeping and drawing-room cars, it was asserted that the practice was adopted to evade the law fixing railroad fares, and that the money thus obtained was divided among "rings" among the directors. The resolution was adopted.

In the Assembly the following were among the bills reported: To amend the act providing for the Government of New-York City; to compel gas companies to report annually to the Comptroller; to extend the time for collecting taxes; to provide for paying the debt of Queens County, and relative to inspectors and canvassers of election in Kings County. Bills to better prevent cattle disease and cruelty to animals; repealing the Railroad Consolidation act; regulating the sale of leaf tobacco; to protect beer sellers in New-York, and to suppress intemperance and regulate the sale of liquors, except in incorporated cities, were among those introduced.

GENERAL.

The official oath was administered yesterday, in Washington, to JOHN F. LEWIS as United States Senator from the State of Virginia, and he took his seat.

A report has just been made to the State Department by the American Consul at Hamilton, Canada, on the condition and treatment of the Indians by the Canadian authorities, from which it appears that the reservation system has been successful there, and that the savages are rapidly progressing in civilization.

The thirty-sixth anniversary of the National Anti-Slavery Society was held in Boston on Wednesday night, when social conversation and an address from WENDELL PHILLIPS were the features.

The Commissioner of Agriculture gives notice to applicants, that the appropriations will not permit a general distribution of seeds, plants, &c., and that these will henceforth be distributed through agricultural societies, farmers' clubs and the correspondents of the office.

The President has approved the proceedings of the Court Martial at Fort Leavenworth in the case of Brevet Lieutenant-Colonel BLOODGOOD, for a violent assault on a Lieutenant of Cavalry, and dismissed the offender from the service.

A recent meeting to organize a Vigilance Committee in Chicago was turned into ridicule by those who responded to the call.

The Maine State Temperance Convention met yesterday at Lewiston, and will continue in session to-day. The speeches were mainly devoted to the discussion of the relations of the Republican Party to the temperance cause in Maine.

THEODORE NICKLOS pleaded guilty to the charge of murder, for killing Dr. ANDREW MEAD, in Cattaraugus County, a few weeks ago, but his plea was refused and counsel was assigned for his defence.

LOCAL.

The case of HOAR vs. HOAR, which is an action by the wife for separation on the ground of inhuman treatment by her husband, was before the Supreme Court Chambers yesterday, on a motion made by the wife for alimony, counsel fees and the possession of her children during the pendency of the suit. The decision was reserved.

Ex-Judge EDMUND L. HEARNE, late of the Marine Court, died yesterday, after several months' illness. The General Term of the Marine Court being in session, a suitable tribute of respect was paid to his memory, and the Court adjourned to Thursday next.

The New-York Wesleyan University Club held its second annual reunion at the Astor House last evening, a distinguished company of ladies and gentlemen being present on the occasion.

An extensive fire occurred last night, by which the buildings Nos. 158, 160, 162 and 164 West Twenty-seventh-street were destroyed, and a loss entailed of $50,000.

Captain WINZEN, of the steamship Allemannia, at this port yesterday, will accept our thanks for late continental papers.

The Coroner's inquest on the body of JOHN BOHNER, the man who was killed a week ago by the falling of some houses in Division-avenue, Williamsburg, was continued last evening. The following named witnesses were examined: A. V. CANNON, H. G. LAW and JOHN BRENNAN. No new facts were elicited from their testimony, and the inquest was again adjourned.

The trial of Colonel BRUCE on a charge of having published a libel against Mr. WILKES, terminated yesterday in a verdict for the defendant.

How the Tariff "Protects" the Woolen Interest.

We have recently presented the facts in regard to the deplorable condition of some of our large industrial branches, such as the boot and shoe manufacture, the woolen interest, and others. We had expected from the Tribune, as the organ of high taxation, some defence of the unequal taxation on these great industries.

The country is groaning under the inequality or weight of these burdens, but thus far no word of excuse or explanation from the high Tariff organs has been presented to show why Congress should nearly destroy these important trades by absurd taxation. Now, however, a voice comes forth from the very parties who are so vigorously "protected"—the manufacturers themselves—to disclaim in the name of all that is reasonable, any more of such wolf-like "protection," and this complaint the Tribune is obliged to listen to. One, whom that journal describes as widely known, as "a veteran, eminent and successful manufacturer," Mr. HARRIS, of Rhode Island, writes to our contemporary that his business—woolen manufacture—is suffering terribly from "over protection," and he then proceeds to explain his difficulties precisely as we had set them forth, in regard to the whole woolen interest, the day previously in the TIMES.

The simple facts being that we grow very little fine wools in the United States; that fine nap goods cannot be made here without an admixture of fine foreign wools, and in consequence Mr. HARRIS or any other manufacturer must either confine himself to coarse woolens, or if he manufacture fine goods, must import fine wools at a duty of some 100 per cent. But fine woolen goods, manufactured abroad, already pay only fifty per cent. duty; so that, in the epigramatic words of Mr. HARRIS, he is, under this tariff, "fifty per cent. worse off than under free trade." Moreover, as he correctly states the case, the fine wools which are excluded from this country by the tariff, enter into manufactures abroad, and make them still cheaper, and still more able to compete with our own.

The duty acts, too, as a bounty on smuggling, and, as any New-England manufacturer knows, quantities of fine foreign wools are now carried in bond over this country to Canada, where they are manufactured and undoubtedly come back here as smuggled goods. The result is, as this manufacturer states, that the whole business is depressed, and the imports of foreign woolens have increased two millions the past year, while our exports are down to a paltry one hundred and sixty-nine thousand dollars, against one hundred and thirty-nine millions from England during the same period.

The consolation which the Tribune administers to its suffering friend is not of an enlivening order, and though designed to be practical, is, we are compelled to say, not entirely based on facts. Thus, Mr. HARRIS is coolly told that he cannot get protection exactly as he likes it for his own factory. He has it at the rate of fifty per cent. on woolen goods; he must not complain if the farmers demand it at 100 per cent. on fine wools. "The duty," says the Tribune, "benefits the American wool grower, and incites him to rear more sheep and produce more wool than if it were taken off. And you may talk till you are blind, without convincing the farmers that the fact is otherwise." "We have more sheep and grow more wool now than we ever did before, and this we rejoice in." Now, Mr. HARRIS, if he has the opportunity, will undoubtedly say that as a patriotic citizen he might rejoice, if the depression of his own business promoted the welfare of such a large class of agriculturists as the wool growers; but he is compelled to call the Tribune's attention to certain stern facts in the statistics of wool growing. The average price of wool the past year was almost the lowest ever reached being about 43 cents, currency, per pound for medium wools. From 1827 to 1869, it was 42½ cents, gold, or about one-third higher. In 1868, the average price of Ohio wools was 35@31 cents, gold. This certainly does not look like "protecting" the wool-growing interest. If a tariff of 100 per cent. accomplishes this, and almost ruins the wool-grower, what will the additional taxation, which the Tribune will doubtless urge as a remedy, do towards the same end?

Mr. HARRIS will probably also call the Tribune's attention to an interesting document issued by the Department of Agriculture, the ports for March and April, 1869. Some seven pages are devoted in this publication to the condition of sheep industry in 171 counties of 21 different States. We have space for but few extracts, but they are of the cheering character indicated by the following: Genesee County, New-York, "decrease of sheep eighty per cent.;" Onondaga County, "one fourth sold;" Butler County, Pennsylvania, "one-third sold;" Ohio County, Western Virginia, "forty per cent;" Penniscot County, Missouri, "forty per cent. sold;" Dubuque County, Minnesota, "fifty per cent. slaughtered;" and similar accounts from other States, so that the Commissioner of Agriculture estimates the decrease of sheep, during 1868, at four millions, and other authorities put it higher. So much for our "having more sheep and growing more wool than ever before," which the Tribune "rejoices in." We suspect the Western sheep farmers do not share in this hilarity. The connection between the high tariff and the low price of wool is clear, and if the Tribune desires information on it, it can readily obtain it among the manufacturers of New-England.

The New Insurance Superintendent—What he Should Be.

Pending the appointment of a new Superintendent of the Insurance Department, we may be allowed to call attention to some considerations by which the selection of so important an office should be guided. The high-class companies would undoubtedly have preferred the retention of Mr. BARNES, who enjoys their confidence and that of the public. Failing this, they have the right to ask that the new incumbent, whoever he may be, shall be well fitted for the office, in respect to many requirements. He must of course possess the highest character for strict honor, and be known to be far removed from any personal affiliations, which could in any degree embarrass the faithful performance of his duties.

But he should be something more than this. The recent discussions upon life insurance have developed the fact that there are errors of management, and of calculation, even, which need correction. Some of these proceed from ignorance of the science of insurance, some from willful carelessness, and yet more from thoroughly unscrupulous methods of swelling the annual volume of business. It is found, moreover, that the public takes a much stronger interest in the subject than was supposed, and calls with increasing earnestness for accurate knowledge upon it. The coming Superintendent must be prepared to make necessary investigations, and to supply their results. To do this, he must be an expert from the start. And what does that name imply, or rather, in regard to insurance, what does it not imply? It is nothing to say that a candidate is a good lawyer or man of business generally. There should be, in addition to these, knowledge and ability of a special character. A full and practical acquaintance with the theories upon which insurance is based is indispensable. The science of risks and their requirements; the power to see through the tables of premiums, and what they cover, not only with reference to the present but the distant future; large and well-digested information as to mortality expectations and the laws by which they are affected; the preparation of clear and distinct reports—all these come within the scope of the Department when properly administered. To detect what is inherently, or accidentally, or purposely bad in the affairs of a company, and to discover weakness where such exists, are precisely what is required, and what is expected.

There are few public officers of whom it can be said that they are the guardian of family fortunes, and the protector of the widow and orphan. Of these few the Superintendent of the Insurance Department is one. It is to him that we look for the prevention of mistakes or the continuance of frauds by which a peculiarly helpless class may be injured. The whole safety and success of an institution of a purely provident and beneficent nature, depend upon the manner in which it is administered. The higher order of companies are willing, nay anxious, that this should be instigated, for they gain by the process. Those who would shun inquiry, would have an incompetent officer in the Department, for in that lies their immunity. For these latter there is necessary a display of official nerve and determination. The amount of business done by insurance companies, presents an immense and increasing aggregate. The public is growing more and more anxious in respect to it. And the selection of a Superintendent for political reasons, or of any gentleman who is not specially and in all respects qualified for the work, will be inexcusable.

The Sound Steamers.

The bill introduced into the State Senate by Mr. TWEED, prohibiting certain steamers plying on Long Island Sound from running through the East River further than Corlears Hook, is an answer to a demand long felt by our citizens. We say nothing of the question touching the constitutionality of the proposed law. We refer rather to the desirability of the proposed measure—its convenience not only to the traveling public but to the City and the local craft that habitually ply in its waters.

It will be observed that the bill is limited in its application to steamers of the largest size, plying on Long Island Sound. Hence it is clear that no sailing vessels are to be interfered with, no tugs and no ordinary steamers. The measure is aimed at the great Sound steamers of the various lines connecting with railroads that run East. And the provision amounts to prohibiting these steamers from landing at any pier or dock on the North River, or any on the East River below Tenth-street. The time named for the bill to go into operation is the 1st of May, the usual renting time for property in this City.

While this measure is in some repects an arbitrary one, and a direct interference with private property, we believe that the event would justify it, and would commend it to the steamboat companies as well as the public. The North River is the most irrational of stations for a steamer plying on the East River. Why the Boston boats should every morning perform the long journey down the East River, turn the Battery, and proceed up the North River again as far as Chambers or Canal-street, to discharge their passengers and freight, and then every evening proceed on the same roundabout course to enter the Sound, is past comprehension. This extra route involves a loss of something like half an hour every day of the year; it is a loss just at the time, often, when passengers are most hurried, namely, in reaching the boat at night or leaving it in the morning. Whenever a fog or storm has delayed the boat, this time lost is specially vexatious, and the needless voyage is specially condemned. The annoyance, however, is trifling compared with the delays and damage caused to shipping on both rivers. These great boats, moving swiftly, scatter the smaller craft. They make their tour round the Battery in the most crowded parts of the two rivers, and so interfere with everything in their course. The present bill, in fact, is styled one for better securing life on the North and East Rivers, and obviating dangers to shipping. The ferries are especially annoyed by these boats swinging on their course. Their times of starting being all about the same, they practically control the river while they pass. Now, at this time in the evening all the numerous ferry boats are most crowded, in most danger from collision, and most troubled by delay. And this is especially true as the river narrows near the Navy Yard.

Of course, it is just to make the restriction of wharfage not needlessly small. But at least there is plenty of water front on the East River, and the higher up the piers for the Sound steamers, the better it will be for all. When this has been accomplished, we believe other similar improvements can be suggested.

Prospects of the French Ministry.

Day by day the impression grows stronger that the Ministry of M. OLLIVIER is after all but a provisional arrangement—a sort of connecting link between the Imperialism that is dying, and the Republicanism that is being matured. The new Cabinet had three leading questions to resolve: first, its attitude towards the Papal syllabus; second, its policy with reference to the commercial treaties; and third, as to maintenance or dissolution of the present Chamber. One element of compensation about the Bonaparte affair is the opportunity it afforded the Minister of Justice of showing the capacity of the new Executive to mete out even-handed justice alike to Prince and people. Nothing succeeds in France like timely and well-directed vigor; and no impartial observer can fail to accord to M. OLLIVIER and his colleagues the credit of having extricated themselves with no little success from a highly critical situation. The danger is, to be sure, not entirely over yet, but in Paris the first step is always the main thing, and the prestige of success is the very essence of power. While no exception can be taken to the executive policy of the Ollivier Ministry, its first treatment of the problems of administration is but little calculated to win general confidence.

Of the three leading questions we have referred to, the first has not yet been fairly grappled with; the second, after evoking a latent division of sentiment, has been converted into an ordinary subject of debate; while the last and most important of all has been tacitly shelved. Should this state of uncertain counsels continue, France will only have exchanged one form of personal government for another. The single will of the Emperor will have given place to the divided volitions of the chiefs of departments. The Ministry will appeal, just as the Emperor used to do, to its success in maintaining public order as the sole defence of its existence, and will like him quietly succumb to the next wave of opposition that is strong enough to imperil it. The divided opinions of the new Ministers on commercial questions is sufficiently notorious. M. OLLIVIER leans very decidedly towards free trade, while the majority of his colleagues are as decidedly in favor of protection. The latter faith is closely associated with Orleanism, and at least five out of the ten composing the new Cabinet are Orleanists.

While irresolution on the question of the commercial treaties might probably not be fatal to the Ollivier Ministry, an undecided policy with reference to an appeal to the country probably will. It is useless to contend, as they have already done, that the present Chamber is a faithful expression of the popular sentiment. With regard to the 19,000,000 inhabitants of towns it may be so; with regard to the 24,000,000 of rural population it is merely the creation of the officials of the Empire. Parties have been reconstituted,—so must be the assembly that claims to represent them. In the words of the Siècle: "In the Chamber and in the country, there is but one Right and one Left; the first formed of all the old monarchical parties, and representing their interests, the second defending the principles of free Democracy as they exist in the United States." With one or other the Ollivier Ministry must identify itself, so that with one or other it may stand or fall.

Doctors Disagree—Medical Ethics.

When doctors disagree, who shall decide? That is the question which seems to puzzle the Press of Albany just now, and a harder nut to crack they do not often find. We all know that when doctors disagree with other people they do not spare sharp words, as witness the line-and-staff discussion. What is it, then, when they disagree among themselves? Let old schools and new schools, homeopathists, allopathists and eclectics answer.

The Albany County Medical Society lately held a meeting at the Hospital in that city, and a dispute arose concerning the Albany Medical College. According to the Evening Journal, the physicians of that city "are unhappily divided into two factions." Moreover, members of the profession who were invited in as peacemakers "eventually became partisans," as, unfortunately, is too apt to be the case, "and now all is discord throughout." Even "the Faculty of the Medical College and the managers of the Hospital are each divided among themselves." The Press, sacrificing, as one of its members says, the spirit of enterprise to its interest in the prosperity of these institutions, as a well-regulated Press should, abstained for a long time from the contest. But, at last, "articles were published in the Express and Argus which brought the matter to a decisive head." These articles praised certain members of the College Faculty, and thereupon "intense excitement prevailed."

The sum and substance of the matter seem to be that it was thought by one party that all the proceedings thus far were right, and by the other that the publication of such complimentary notices was "in violation of medical ethics." Resolutions to the latter effect were offered, amended, and then formed the bone of contention. Now, what "medical ethics" are in this matter we shall leave experts to discuss; but we do not suppose that either party conceived their liveliest illustration to have been presented in the subsequent discussion of these resolutions. The Chairman of the meeting is commended for "keeping the belligerents as closely to the question as they could be confined under the circumstances;" but since the days of Dr. Ollapod the medical and militant spirit were never more intimately conjoined than in one or two of these "belligerents."

Of course, the resolutions were first offered; then they were amended; then a committee was appointed under them; then a motion for erasure or excision of the resolutions from the minutes came up; and so on. One speaker, in urging harmony of action, remarked that "even Moses, when he fought with the devils in Heaven, brought no railing accusation against them," which happy Scriptural allusion was received with rounds of applause. Finally, the confused matter resolved itself into a report, affixing upon two members of the Faculty the commendatory notices; and we may remark, without offence, that "internal evidence" seems to have been the clue which led to the discovery. At this stage of the proceedings, the doctors, with that proverbial good sense which distinguishes their profession, adjourned to an oyster supper.

People versed in the mysteries of oyster supper "and accompaniments" will not be surprised to learn that a milder sentiment animated most breasts on the resumption of the dispute. One gentleman conceived that the whole matter was "a tempest in a teapot, and of no particular consequence." A second "did not regard the article as puffing." A third, however, charged the Committee with "button-holing editors, and jumping over the bars which are usually supposed to surround communications to the Press"—very serious charges, we take it, unless explained, as they were, by the fourth gentleman, soon after. A fifth speaker seemed to consider that he had been an offender, if offence there was, in the same wise, and "hoped a committee would be appointed upon him." And, in fine, the report was adopted, 23 to 18. Then the question came, Was adopting the report a "mere expression of the truth of the findings," or was it a "vote of censure?" This the Chair declined to decide, and accordingly the meeting adjourned. We hope that all the discord which the Albany papers speak of as prevailing will be settled as promptly, and in the absence of other prescriptions for the distemper, we would suggest a repetition of the specific already so successfully tried, an amicable oyster supper.

The bold, manly stand taken by Mr. DAWES in behalf of retrenchment and economy in every Department of the Government, will not be weakened by his speech of yesterday. It is frank in the acknowledgment of what, after all, were minor errors, and consistent, clear and effective in the enforcement of the cardinal feature of his first great argument. The attempts of a few journalists, and of politicians who are fairly represented by General BUTLER, to ostracise a man with Mr. DAWES' character and record, because he dares to criticise departmental estimates and to demand for the people the relief which reduced expenditures and reduced taxation alone can give, is as indecent as it is impolitic. The country heartily sustains Mr. DAWES, and wishes that more were like him in both Houses.

The Senate at Albany having confirmed most of Governor HOFFMAN'S appointments, it may be assumed that the "Irreconcilables," led by Mr. TWEED, have given way. Affairs were at a dead lock for a day or two, but everybody foresaw that it would not last. If this or that "Sachem" could not get all that he wanted at the moment, he would soon consent to take part. Mr. TWEED could scarcely have made it "pay" to thwart the Governor at every move. There is now peace among the leaders of the "honest" party. We shall wait patiently for them to get to work—without any great expectations, but quite willing to be proved mistaken in our calculations.

We are bidden to expect a bill from the Legislature designed, strange to say, to promote the comfort and convenience of the public. The public is so little accustomed to receive attentions of this sort, that we shall believe in the said act when it is passed, and not before. Its aim, according to rumor, is to compel street-car proprietors to provide a seat for every passenger, and to absolutely prohibit the overloading of cars. Conductors will not be allowed to huddle their passengers together, like pigs going to market. Although the shareholders in certain lines might not at first like the change, we are satisfied they would be no losers by it in the end. The certainty of finding decent accommodation in street cars would cause them to be used by thousands who now make a point of avoiding them whenever they can.

The number of accidents arising from furious driving in the public streets is constantly on the increase. It must be remembered that only a small proportion of the cases which occur get into the newspapers, for the majority of victims are taken home and there tended. The "fast trotter" is as much out of place in the streets of a city as a steam engine, and if the City Government were worth its salt it would cause all drivers who exceed a fair and reasonable pace to be arrested. It is no satisfaction to know that the drivers themselves sometimes "come to grief." As a general rule they, unfortunately, escape, and the sufferers are children and women, upon whom the "light wagon" and "fast team" suddenly bursts, without giving them a moment's time to get out of the way. The subject is not unworthy the attention of a Democratic Legislature eager to carry out all kinds of reforms.

So it seems that Mr. BERGH is not to be abolished. Some Democratic dog fancier and cock fighter made the announcement, but the "wish was father to the thought." It is only intended to render the employer of any person found violating the law for the protection of dumb animals liable to all the penalties of the offence—a perfectly proper arrangement. Mr. BERGH will doubtless persevere with his work—and we do trust he will arrest a few more drivers for unmercifully beating their horses. He may find dozens of such cowardly brutes any morning in a walk down Broadway. If people who own private carriages were to see the way their coachmen treat their horses half the time, they would be voluntarily disposed to invite the interference of Mr. BERGH. As it is, we are not without hope of seeing Mr. BERGH with a large force of trusty assistants under his command, and the Police coöperating heartily with him.

A new form of excitement is to be provided for people who go out after dark—which probably means four-fifths of the adult population. The garroters have set to work again. Within the past few days we have reported four or five cases, not reckoning one which proved to be a false alarm. The most recent victim was a gentleman who was on his way home at a quarter past eleven at night, and fell into the hands of three garroters at the corner of Eleventh-street and Fifth-avenue. Sad to relate, that melancholy and dreary avenue is more infested with sturdy beggars and all sorts of ruffians by night than almost any other thoroughfare in the City. The street has been handed over to thieves of all kinds. Pride has had a terrible fall. Perhaps, however, the Police might do a little for the unfortunate inhabitants who cannot cross the road without slipping into a deep morass, nor walk on the pathway without running considerable risk of being robbed The licensed plunderers connected with the City must be allowed to have a little more rope before they bring themselves to an end.

The fraud concerning which a correspondent wrote to us yesterday, is far more common than is generally supposed. The maker of some quack pill or preparation deliberately forges the names of private persons to his fictitious testimonials. All certificates of the kind should be received with the greatest suspicion. It does not take long to write a testimonial setting forth that some well-known man has been cured of a wooden leg by two or three applications of a liniment, or a single box of pills. There was once a poor nobleman in England who sold his name to the proprietor of a quack pill, and who, consequently, stood sponsor for that particular pill in all the papers of the United Kingdom. In the course of a few years he was represented to have taken pills enough to sink a ship. This, however, was done by virtue of a fair bargain—the majority of printed testimonials are simply impudent fabrications. People rarely take the trouble to make any inquiries about them, but are ever ready to believe the noisy quack. They have only themselves to blame when they fall victims to impostors.

The milk distilleries are getting as little mercy as the malt distilleries; and these legal interferences with what is contraband and unwholesome must result very favorably for the general public, both adults and children. As regards the milk manufacturers, the Board of Health has ordered suits against a number of them belonging to Williamsburg; from which all concerned will come to perceive that the production of milk is a thing that really belongs to the open places and pastures of the country. The Board of Health is making good headway against all the dirty and poisonous traditions of our busy Metropolis, and we do not despair of seeing it yet as well ordered and clean a City as any other in the world. Rome was not cleaned in a day,—nor the Augean Stable either.

The Tribune boasts of a quality which no one else has ever yet been able to detect in it—namely, its tendency to give fair play to everybody. It is a common infirmity of humanity to suppose that we possess the very virtues which have been altogether omitted from our composition. If the Tribune has won a name for any particular art in controversy, it is the art of dealing foul blows, and of pursuing with detraction any one against whom it conceives one of its headstrong and unreasoning prejudices. Its special boast now is that it published Mr. KELLEY'S speech in answer to Mr. WELLS. Seeing that Mr. KELLEY is, on this particular subject, a rather loud echo of the Tribune, we cannot acknowledge that it has exhibited a celestial degree of magnanimity. The fact which tells against it is that it has not dared to publish more than two or three lines of Mr. WELLS' report—perhaps the most striking testimony that could possibly have been given to the unanswerable character of most of the statements in that report. No Democrat could compliment Mr. WELLS so highly as the Tribune has done, while at the same time it merely intended to be spiteful.

The South American Republics are doing their best to keep up with the general march of things. The Argentine and Chili have agreed on a mutual system of free trade, and Peru has undertaken works as magnificent in their way as our own Pacific thoroughfare. Those Peruvians were once mighty roadmakers, like the Romans; and they are resolved, under President BALTA, to maintain their old renown in the construction of two grand railway lines. One of these will run from Lima through the passes of the Cordillera to the head waters of the Amazon—a feat that will enable Peru to touch the Atlantic as well as the Pacific; and the other will lead from Arequipa to the lofty mountain lake of Titicaca. The expense of all this work will be magnificent in proportion—sixty millions or so to begin with—and an American, Mr. MEIGGS, is, we perceive, to be the architect-in-chief.

More cock fighting! Some of our worthy contemporaries were in raptures yesterday over a couple of "mains" which had been fought somewhere in New-Jersey and Westchester County. The poor birds which were brought out to make sport for a horde of yelling ruffians were carried away in all stages of agony. The Herald, which gives graphic reports of these disgusting scenes, tells us with great relish that in one match the "birds were both blinded and cut to pieces." Another "fine cock got a chance blow on the brain, which killed him instantly." But if the public wishes to see what a journalist can do when he is put to his mettle, let it look at this beautiful description of a fight: "It was a rattling, flap for flap fight, and Jersey was getting the best of it, when he got his throat cut, and received a brain blow which used him up very quickly, the muff winning in style." We must leave outside observers to decide whether it is much worse to be one of the ringleaders at this abominable "sport" than to encourage it by devoting column after column of a daily newspaper to its loathsome details.

AMUSEMENTS.

Mr. Fechter in "The Duke's Motto."

After playing Ruy Blas for twelve nights, Mr. FECHTER chose for his second character in America that of Lagadère, in "The Duke's Motto," and the play was accordingly produced at Niblo's Garden on Wednesday evening. The house was crowded to discomfort. Mr. FECHTER was four times called before the curtain with acclamations, and, as a popular success, the occasion without doubt surpassed that of this great artist's first appearance. During the prologue and the first act we must in candor admit that this did not seem likely to be the case. Mr. FECHTER seemed hoarse in his opening scenes, and, to our eyes, a little nervous and hurried in consequence. Those spectators, if there were any such, who saw the introductory parts of the play but failed to see the third and fourth acts, could hardly deem possible the disparity in the effectiveness—at least as regards subtlety and witchery over his audience—of Mr. FECHTER'S Lagadère in the first and last portions of the performance. "The Duke's Motto" is, like "Ruy Blas," a melodrama, and, as we shall show, in some respects a worse melodrama. It has, however, as will also be pointed out, much ampler opportunities for pageantry, glitter and color. The time of the Regency, in France, with its dashing, profligate manners, its numerous beauties and ruffling duelists, its brilliant costume, its love-making, intriguing, gaming and fighting, is the time of times for romantic drama. And more than that older epoch of FAUSTINA does it remind us—in truth the last scene is the exact picture—of an arena

> "Ringed round with a flame of fair faces
> And splendid with swords."

Adapted for Mr. FECHTER from the French of PAUL FEVAL by Mr. JOHN BROUGHAM, and first produced at the Lyceum, London, in January, 1863, "The Duke's Motto" may be described as a gorgeous panorama of inexplicable deeds and incredible consequences, the scene of which lies chiefly at the Court of the Regent ORLEANS, and the main object of which is to set forth the astonishing adventures of the Chevalier Henri de Lagadère. This gentleman, at first a graceless, roystering adventurer, becomes a sort of implacable Avenger, who pursues the assassins of the Duke de Nevers—who is slaughtered in full view of the audience in the prologue, so that there may no mistake about it—until each and every one of them has fallen by his hand. As an incident of this desperate history, Lagadère falls in love with Blanche, the daughter of Nevers, whose life the Chevalier saved as an infant, and whom he ever after, in pursuance of a solemn oath to her father, protected and cherished. At the beginning of the play the Chevalier, or, as he is more frequently styled, the Captain, has a duel on his hands with Nevers. Hearing, however, that the latter is to be set upon by bravos, the impulsive hero resolves to defend rather than attack him. This he does with great but unsuccessful bravery, since, after the two have killed the whole body of visible assassins, a concealed one—who is no other than the infamous Prince de Gonzagues, instigator of the plot and prime villain of the whole drama—shoots and kills the hapless Nevers. In the face of dreadful odds, and by a gymnastic feat whereby Mr. FECHTER has gained the heart of the galleries forever, the beset Captain makes his escape with the infant, leaving her murdered sire and five of his assailants lying stark in the moonlight amid their baffled companions. This constitutes the prologue. The main action of the play occurs in the three following acts.

Twenty years having rolled away, the curtain rises, for the first act of the play proper, on a precipitous mountain gorge, supposed to be on the Spanish frontier. Here a band of gypsies have pitched their tents, and with them Lagadère and Blanche, now grown to womanhood—exactly in the manner of Thaddeus and Arline in the "Bohemian Girl"—have found refuge. The Zingari have, as usual, a Queen, and her name is Zillah. A charmingly picturesque scene opens the act, which is enlivened by a really characteristic dance and much effective costume, Mr. FECHTER, in particular, presenting a figure quite worthy the pencil of a MURILLO. Presently the active Gonzagues, with his suite, make their appearance. This wicked Prince, the secret murderer, although the cousin of Nevers, has taken occasion to marry his widow; but the vast estates which he covets are in abeyance until the life or death of the missing Blanche can be certified. This is the hinge of all the subsequent action. The Prince, learning that Zillah, the Gipsy Queen, is a foundling—and failing to stumble on Blanche—resolves to pass off Zillah for Blanche, and arranges matters in his own fashion to that effect with the "Patriarch" of the Tribe, an uncommonly manageable vagabond called Lemuel. Gonzagues prepares to start for Paris with his prize. Among his train is one Æsop, a hunchback, a famous swordsman and scoundrel, the depositary of the Prince's villanous secrets. In order to take his place, Lagadère—whose estimate of the value of human life is in strict accord with the conventions of the period—fixes a quarrel on Æsop, kills him, assumes his character and costume—an assumption so marvelous in Mr. FECHTER'S hands as to deceive the audience as well as the Prince, and sets out at the same time with the rest for Paris. In that city a family to proceed from the prince. The upshot is that the Princess declines to recognize Zillah as her "long lost daughter," and the winding up of the mystery is reserved for the Regent's ball. Lagadère having imparted her secret to Blanche, leaves her and her corroborative papers to the care of Carrickfergus, an Irishman—he himself, as Lagadère, being an outlaw—and hastens to the Regent's palace, where with difficulty he gets admission. Unhappily, in the meantime, the agents of the Prince have contrived to abduct Blanche and her papers; so that at the critical moment, at the ball, when Lagadere expects her to arrive with her guardian to confirm the story he has told the Regent, Carrickfergus gives him the sign agreed upon that all is lost. Thus the Captain at once forfeits his pledge to the Princess, and disappoints the Regent, and is sent to prison. Gonsagues sends a cowardly fellow to dispatch him, but Lagadère outwits the assassin, escapes, and resumes his old disguise as Æsop in the household of the Prince. From him he hears that Blanche is under the same roof, and proposes to Gonsagues, as a better scheme than her murder—which that amiable gentleman contemplates—that she should be married to him, the base-born hunchback, and thus by a degrading alliance forfeit her rights, as provided, in the estates. The Prince assents, the victim is sent for, Blanche soon understands the ruse and agrees to the marriage, the whole device being adopted merely to gain time. The two sign the marriage contract and after Lagadère has signed he throws off his disguise and proclaims himself for what he is. His enemies are prevented from rushing upon and destroying him by the opportune arrival of the Regent and his Court. Blanche is restored to her mother, Lagadere's pledge is fulfilled, the Prince is denounced by the latter as the murderer of Nevers, the Regent assents to the duel a la mort—which by the custom of the time settles such matters—and, amid the wild excitement of nobles, the cries of ladies, and the frenzied anguish of poor Blanche, the battle is fought out then and there. Lagadère kills the miscreant Prince, she whom he has adored from infancy sinks, fainting, into his arms, and, with the approval of the survivors on this tableau of happiness, the curtain falls. Mr. FECHTER'S almost feline intensity is splendidly adapted to the portrayal of the remorseless resolution with which, pursuant to his oath, Lagadere hunts down his foes. For him there is no turning to the right or the left. He is implacable as destiny. For each successive triumph to the last, we easily see that his own life would be reckoned a cheap exchange were it not that something still left undone was wanting to the full consummation of his vow. But the cat-like action, the swift, ferocious deadliness with which he springs on his foes, totally disappears in other scenes, and especially in those with Blanche, which are impassioned and tender in an exquisite degree. And here we are reminded of one of the great secrets of Mr. FECHTER'S art—his supreme grace. The subordination of egotism that this constantly suggests is exceedingly captivating; for grace, as one of the most subtle of Frenchmen has well said, imitates modesty, as politeness imitates kindness. Yet even grace, delicious as is its charm, does not make the heart beat quicker or the soul confess the unmistakeable if indescribable touch of genius. This is reserved for the passages of deepest feeling, and wisely, for the electrical force would be weakened were the connection constantly maintained. The burst of joy with which Mr. FECHTER greets the discovery of Blanche's love for him signalizes one of the occasions when the rapport is complete. We may say the same of his sharp cry, "Here, in this house!" when he learns from the Prince of Blanche's whereabouts; but indeed the whole of the headlong fiery dialogue that follows is almost as superlatively fine.

The simmilation of the character of Æsop affords Mr. FECHTER opportunities lacking before for the display of the wonderful versatility that is in him. His forgetting, at times, under strong excitement, the part he is acting, his rearing his crest, so to speak, against the vile Prince, his interlocutor, in paroxysms of fury, and then recovering his presence of mind, the swift resumption of the cringing servility and sardonic chuckle of the Hunchback,—can hardly receive justice from description. The contrasts furnished by these outbursts are marvelous as studies of art; and they are made so not so much, perhaps, by effects of declamation—although these are often elaborate and striking—as by a physiognomical mobility that we have never seen surpassed. We have but to remember how purely mechanical most attempts at swiftly-changing expression on the stage are—how tardily the look follows the thought and betrays to you that it is put on, not spontaneous, not like near thunder that follows quicker than thought the glare of the lightning—to realize how precious this gift of facial mobility really is and how supreme is its importance as an element of histrionic success. As an acting play, for a general audience, "The Duke's Motto" is far more effective than "Ruy Blas." The story of the latter is simple, intelligible and possible. It is full of a tender pathos; there is always a background of regretful melancholy to the picture, that so noble a being should be thus piteously degraded by fate and consigned to the bloody end and subsequent oblivion he so little merits by mere freak, as it were, of outrageous fortune. The story of "The Duke's Motto" is complicated, obscure and improbable. A swashbuckler of a creature, who seems, up to the beginning of the action, to have had quite as much luck as he deserves, and whose notions respecting homicide ought not to awaken our sympathy, is touched by a moon-light glimpse of the sleeping, innocent face of a little child—his enemy's child—and we are given to understand that his heart melts from that hour. His sword thenceforth is devoted to honor. He will even deny himself the luxury of killing Nevers. This is perhaps the most poetical, as it certainly is the most human incident of the composition; which is fortunate, since it is continually referred to as a keynote, the combinations, melodies, discords all remind us of it, and even, to follow out the metaphor, the coda takes us back in imagination to the gloomy fosse at Caylus, to Lagadère's oath, to the dying Nevers, and so sanctions as poetical justice its sanguinary fulfillment.

It has been said both in England and here that to appreciate Mr. FECHTER his auditor must have seen a great deal of French acting. In a close critical sense—the sense of judging not for oneself only but for others—this is no doubt true. The most elaborate menu of PHILIPPE or DELMONICO is less inviting to a clown than a dinner of bacon and greens. There are no doubt thousands in our streets to whom raw whisky of the red-eye sort is more alluring than the choicest Burgundy. The fact proves something which is obvious enough but which it would serve no good end to do more than hint at. We may admit that a man, however brilliant his natural abilities, cannot be an analyst of art, or of 5 school in art, when he knows nothing about it. Mr. FECHTER is destitute of those vocal and muscular exaggerations that have been too common on both the English stage and our own, and being so totally different in point of delicacy and finish and true naturalness to what many have been accustomed, it is not strange that exponents are found to assert, let us say, the superiority over foreign kickshaws of the well-known bacon and greens, and the indigenous whisky. It is only kind to be indulgent with those who hold such opinions; and nothing further need be said about them than chacun à son godût, and that what is intrinsically good either for the body or mind is sure at this day, in the United States, to find its proper level and to be rated at its true value.

We have only to add concerning "The Duke's Motto" that the piece is much better placed upon the stage than was "Ruy Blas," and in this wise is more creditable to the management. Miss LE CLERQ's part is somewhat slighter than in the latter play, but is nicely and thoroughly studied, and in some instances—the agonized struggle down the staircase during the fight at the end is one of them—her performance rises to excellence. Mrs. MELINDA JOKES, a lady once a favorite in New-York, made her first appearance in eight years as the Duchess, and was [illegible] received. Mr. [illegible] in these scenes, looked more [illegible] and [illegible] disagreeable. [illegible] and deserves credit for [illegible]. Mr. BARRY is very acceptable as the Regent. He dresses the character in excellent taste and—rare merit—looks as if he might have been the gentleman he represents. The play is, in fact, beautifully dressed throughout, and the sets for the concluding scenes of the third and fourth acts are so good as almost to obliterate the recollection of managerial shortcomings in "Ruy Blas."

OBITUARY.

Achille Charles Leonce Victor, Duc de Broglie.

The Duke of BROGLIE, whose death at Paris on the 26th inst. has just been reported by cable, was born on the 28th of November, 1785, and consequently had attained the age of 85 years.

By the death of this nobleman the present generation has lost another of those connecting links which bind it to the transitional epoch of history which followed the first French revolution. The grandfather of the deceased was an Italian, who entered France in the suite of the great Cardinal MAZARIN. He was subsequently created a Prince of the Holy Roman Empire. The father of the late Duke was one of the deputies to the States-General that formed the prelude to the revolution, and his adhesion to the cause of royalty brought him to the guillotine in 1794. On the fall of ROBESPIERRE, the mother of the subject of our sketch returned to France, and the educatton of the young Duke was conducted under the supervision of her second husband, M. D'ARGENSON. Having no taste for the military profession, he was employed in the diplomatic and administrative service under the first Empire. He was, however, no Bonapartist, and had a very mean opinion of the administrative qualities of the first NAPOLEON. He therefore gladly hailed the revolution of 1814, and was by LOUIS XVIII. made a Peer of France. He assisted in this capacity at the trial of Marshal NEY, and spoke strongly in favor of sparing the life of the great General of NAPOLEON. About this period he married the only daughter of the famous Mme. DE STAEL, and notwithstanding a difference of religious belief, (his wife being a zealous Protestant,) lived happily with her until her death in 1838. He supported, against the various Ministers of the Restoration, various measures of reform, notably with reference to the freedom of the Press and liberty of public discussion. He acquired a character for a certain incisive and vigorous style of oratory. In 1828 he founded the Revue Française, to which he occasionally contributed. A celebrated article of his on the right of inflicting capital punishment is still quoted with reference to the subject. The revolution of July and the accession of LOUIS PHILLIPPE were quite in harmony with the liberal ideas of the Duke of BROGLIE, but under the Orleanist King he ranked himself among the party called Doctrinaires, whose ideas of reform were in theory unexceptionable, but who could never be satisfied that the time was ready for their execution. He held several high offices under the citizen King, As Minister of Foreign Affairs he arranged a treaty with England for the suppression of the slave trade. He retired from this office on account of the rejection of the law on the American indemnity. Returning again to the Ministry he introduced and carried various severe enactments against the liberty of the Press, which belied his previous ardor in an opposite direction, and which the French Liberals of to-day have not yet succeeded in completely abolishing. The revolution of February, 1848, and the subsequent republican régime drove the Duke of BROGLIE into disdainful retirement, from which he emerged towards the last days of the Constituent Assembly. After the election of LOUIS NAPOLEON as a popular deputy, the Duke procured a seat in the Legislative Assembly, and became one of the chiefs of the coalition, which embraced the various sections of monarchists. He proposed in 1851 a constitutional amendment, which was intended to pave the way for the return of the House of Orleans. The coup d'état of the 2d December found M. DE BROGLIE and his friends entirely unprepared, though its success was mainly due to the total disorganization they had introduced into the republican ranks. As a statesman the Duke of BROGLIE was seldom popular, but he generally commanded the respect of all parties. His rigid notions of right made him very unacceptable as an Ambassador, and, according to TALLEYRAND, he made himself equally disagreeable in London, Vienna and St. Petersburg. LAFAYETTE said of him, "I don't like the man, but I esteem him." Under the Second Empire he had lived in strict retirement, only diversified by his election as a member of the French Academy in 1856, and his recovery by means of the Courts, in 1861, of his book, entitled Considerations on the Government of France," which the Prefect of Police had confiscated.

THE WESLEYAN UNIVERSITY.

Reunion of the Wesleyan University Club—Toasts and Speeches.

In response to an invitation to attend the second annual reunion of the New-York Wesleyan University Club, a large and pleasant gathering of gentlemen, together with several ladies, took place at the Astor House last evening. Among the members of the University Alumni who were in attendance were Rev. Dr. Curry, Mr. Chauncey Shaffer, Rev. Dr. Anderson, Mr. Daniel Drew, Mr. John H. Ockerahausen, Professor Harvey B. Lane, Mr. Orange Judd, Professor G. F. Confort, Rev. Dr. Joseph Cummings, President of the University, Colonel Thorpe, Mr. A. V. Stout, of the Shoe and Leather National Bank, Rev. C. D. Foss, Hon. Isaac Kellogg, and Rev. Dr. Holdict, besides many other graduates of the University. Mrs. Professor Smith, Mrs. Dr. Olin, Mrs. Lane and Mrs. Everett were among the ladies present. Professor LANE presided at the dinner, Mr. SHAFFER reading the toasts. The first toast, "The Wesleyan University," was responded to by Dr. CUMMINGS, who said that among the notable events connected with the history of the University during the past year was the noble and generous donation made by Mr. ORANGE JUDD. This gentleman had given a large sum of money for the erection of a large building, which was to be devoted to a scientific purpose. The building is to be ninety-four feet in length, sixty-four in width, with four stories and basement. Dr. CUMMINGS also announced that the University was now possessed of property amounting to $650,000, and that it had a fund of $27,000, the interest on which money was annually applied to the purchase of books for the library. He closed by thanking the Alumni for the interest which they had shown in the welfare of the University. Next came addresses by Rev. Dr. HOLDICH, Rev. Dr. CURRY, Colonel THORPE and others, interspersed with graduates' songs, making the entertainment an agreeable success. The officers of the Alumni for 1870 are as follows: HARVEY B. LANE, Esq., President; CHARLES R. NORTH, Esq., Secretary; ORANGE JUDD, Esq., Secretary.

The Murder of Dr. Andrew Mead, of Alleghany—Arrest and Reported Confession of a Young Man.

Yesterday morning we published the facts connected with the arrest of THEODORE NICHOLS and the successful search after the watch of the unfortunate victim of this young murderer. He has at last succumbed to the fearful pressure of circumstantial evidence and confessed his guilt. This morning, in conversation with two or three visitors he evinced more than usual interest in his condition, and anxiously inquired if there was any possibility of getting off without being hanged. When he was informed that that was a matter for a jury to determine what his intent was in committing the deed, he appeared very despondent, and after a while, apparently overcome by the weight of his own reflections, voluntarily delivered himself of the following confession:

"I am sorry I am in this position, but it is too late now. If they had not found the watch I should have been safe; but the evidence is too strong, and I suppose I shall be hung. When I left Olean I had no intention of doing anything of the kind. As I passed Dr. MEAD'S office I saw the doctor, and made up my mind to get his money. I went in and sat down, asked the doctor to loan me $2 to go to Dunkirk; he declined to loan me any money, and I waited an opportunity and grabbed him with the intention of taking it from him. The doctor was too strong for me, and got me down. We had a severe scuffle, and the doctor got up and went and locked the door and locked me in. I thought he was going to get a gun to shoot me, for the doctor keeps a gun, and he is an awful tempered man when he gets mad. I seized a small shovel by the stove and hit him over the head two or three times, and the store key fell from his hand, and I don't know but I struck him once or twice after that. I then took his watch and money, and locked the store door, went out, locked the door after me, and started for Olean." He stole a passage to Genesee, went from there to Hornellsville, and thence to Buffalo. Each moment seems to increase the realisation of the terrible responsibility of his crime, and he was once or twice heard to say, "Now I have no hope of escaping the gallows, and I shall only strive to obtain forgiveness from God."

In addition to the confession above printed the prisoner has acknowledged that he was arrested here several years since for stabbing a man, that being his first and only previous offence.

The Anglo-French Commercial Treaty—Stormy Debate in the French Senate—The Pope not Dead—The Spanish Elections—Erie "Stamped" Shares.

PARIS, Jan. 27.—There was a stormy session of the Corps Legislatif this afternoon, on the Franco-English Commercial Treaty. M. THIERS, in a speech, demanded a renunciation of this treaty, and reproached the majority, asserting that they did not truly represent the country or they would overthrow a Ministry having principles the country had repudiated. Great agitation ensued. Ex-Minister FORCADE replied that the majority upheld the Cabinet. It is not understood why THIERS opposed the Ministry and FORCADE upheld, but it is supposed that M. THIERS wished it to result in a vote that would force Messrs. DARN, LOUVET and BUFFET to resign in order to be replaced by members of the majority....It is announced that Lord CLARENDON has arrived here from London, to ascertain for the English Government the real intention of the Cabinet and Tuileries in regard to the treaty of commerce, which expires on the 4th of February next....The Senate yesterday discussed the proposition for an international coinage system. Messrs. CHEVALIER and LE VERRIER and others participated and urged the adoption of a gold coin equivalent to twenty-five francs as the universal unit.... The Duke of BROGLIE, a leading member of the Orleanists, died here yesterday. He was 85 years old....Many of the troops recently sent to Le Creuzot to preserve order among the strikers have returned to the garrison. President SCHNEIDER now accuses Englishmen of having fomented the troubles.

ROME, Jan. 27.—The report of the death of the Pope is not true....Colonel D'ARGY, commander of the Antibes Legion, died in this city yesterday. During his last sickness he called the officers of the Legion together, and enjoined on them fidelity and honor to the Pope and France.

LONDON, Jan. 27.—It is said that a large number of the Erie shares held in this country have been stamped by the Erie Shareholders' Protection Union. A member of the firm of BURCHAM, DALRYMPLE & CO. will soon leave for New-York to protect the holders by voting on the stamped shares.

GREENOCK, Jan. 27.—The ship Margaret Williamson, from a Newfoundland port for Oporto, has put in here with topmasts, jibboom, bulwarks and galley gone, having experienced a heavy gale. One man had been lost overboard.

MADRID, Jan. 27.—No further returns from the elections for members of the Constitutional Cortes have been received since the last dispatches, but the authorities here make a different classification of those known to be elected: Progressists, 18; Republicans, 4; Unionists, 3; Absolutist, 1.

GEORGE PEABODY.

Admiral Farragut's Visit to the Monitors—An Impatient Multitude in Small Boats—Funeral Preparations at Peabody.

PORTLAND, Me., Jan. 27.—Great numbers of people flocked to town to-day to visit the fleet, notice having been given in the papers that they would receive visitors, and great disappointment was felt by many at being refused admittance, owing to the visit of Admiral FARRAGUT and party, on whose account the vessels were kept free until the afternoon. The harbor was filled, however, with boats which sailed around the fleet, and the disappointed ones had the privilege of witnessing the fine spectacle of manning the yards of the Monarch and Plymouth when the Admiral visited those vessels. No sooner was the Admiral's party down one side than visitors were admitted on the other, and in the afternoon the vessels were crowded. All the boats in the vicinity swarmed with passengers, and the wharves were so crowded with people waiting for a passage that some boys were pushed into the dock, luckily, without loss of life.

PEABODY, Mass., Jan. 27.—Preparations here for the obsequies of the late GEORGE PEABODY are nearly completed. The remains are expected to arrive on Tuesday next, and will lay in state in the lower hall of Peabody Institute one week. No services will be held in the Institute. The final obsequies will take place in the Congregational Church, and the remains will be deposited in Harmony Grove Cemetery.

VIRGINIA RESTORED.

Action of Governor Walker—An Order Assuming his Legitimate Authority—Appointment of a Lieutenant-Governor.

RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 27.—General CANBY to-day issued an order directing that all military commissions acting under the Reconstruction acts be dissolved; that all citizen prisoners be turned over to the State Courts, that all citizen prisoners undergoing sentence of military commission shall serve out such sentence unless released by a United States Court, and that all civil officers appointed under the Provisional Government shall vacate their offices when their successors are elected or appointed under the new Constitution. Governor WALKER has issued a proclamation convening the Legislature on Tuesday, Feb. 8. JOHN L. MAYRE, Jr., of Fredericksburg, was to-day appointed Lieutenant-Governor by Governor WALKER, to fill the vacancy occasioned by the election of Lieutenant-Governor LEWIS to the United States Senate.

THE INDIANS.

The Condition of the Canadian Indians—Report of the United States Consul at Hamilton—The Kansas Indians.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Hon. FREEMAN N. BLAKE, United States Consul at Hamilton, Ont., has made a report upon the condition and treatment of the Canadian Indians, showing that the settlement of the aborigines upon large reservations is essential to rescuing them from their dangers and making them amenable to law and order. He says: "The experience of Canada and our own, leads towards the same conclusion. Since Great Britain acquired Canada the Indians have even been her faithful allies in war and maintained peace among themselves. They are advancing in civilization and increasing in number. The Government has treated them as wards or pupils, considering their wishes but retaining the power in its own hands with reciprocal benefit. Its agents hold their offices for life, or during good behavior. A strict regard to integrity in every detail is deemed an essential part of the policy. The legislation of Canada as to the Indians during the last two years has been exceedingly thoughtful and comprehensive, its object having been to qualify and encourage them to self-government." These are the chief facts elucidated in the report.

ENOCH HOAG, Superintendent of the Kansas Indian Superintendency, and a Committee of the Society of Friends, including GEORGE WISTAR, of Philadelphia, appeared before the Senate Committee on Indian Affairs this morning to submit their views as to the proper treatment of the Indians in that State, and to urge the expediency of making appropriations to carry out their plan for educating and civilizing the various tribes under their charge. The Committee promised to give their representations careful consideration.

A Massacre—Surprise of an Indian Town by United States Cavalry—Men, Women and Children Slaughtered.

HELENA, Mont., Jan. 27.—On the 18th inst., an expedition against certain tribes of Indians who have been stealing stock and murdering whites for the past several months, left Gort Shaw, under command of Colonel BAKER. The expedition consisted of four companies of the Second Cavalry and one company of the Thirteenth Infantry. An Indian, who arrived at Fort Benton to-day, reports that early on the morning of the 23d inst., Colonel BAKER surprised Bear Chief's camp of over thirty lodges, and killed men, women and children. No quarter was given. The surprise was complete. Only six or eight men escaped. Bear Chief was among the slain. Col. BAKER'S loss was trifling. Other tribes of the Blackfeet, upon learning of the affair, immediately made for Canada to reach the British possessions, but it is understood the expedition has Government instructions to cross the boundary line in pursuit. Bear Chief is known to have murdered several whites. This news is confirmed by other arrivals at Fort Benton.

PRINCE ARTHUR.

A Magnificent Affair in Washington—Ball at the British Minister's—The President, Mrs. Grant, Prince Arthur, and Mrs. Fish Open the Ball.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The ball given at the new Masonic Hall to-night by the British Minister and Mrs. THORNTON, in honor of Prince ARTHUR, was decidedly recherché, and one of the most magnificent affairs of the kind that has ever taken place at the capital. The hall was profusely decorated with flags and flowers, all of which were arranged with the most artistic taste. In all of these decorations the American and the British flags were conspicuous, and were arranged by C. M. BREESE, United States Navy; HAMILTON FISH, Jr., General WOODHALL, of the Engineer Corps; Lieutenant CUTTS and Lieutenant TURNBULL, of the navy, and SEATON MONROE, Esq., under the direction of Mrs. THORNTON and Mrs. FREEMAN. At the east end of the hall a platform was raised, the surroundings of which were tastefully hung with festoons of flowers, while a large number of ornamented gas jets were added to the permanent fixtures in different portions of the room.

Long before 9 o'clock a vast assemblage of people had collected in front of the main entrance to the Hall, while the sidewalks upon the corners of Ninth and F streets were almost entirely blockaded. Between 9 and 10 o'clock the carriages commenced to arrive, and before 11 an immense concourse of distinguished ladies and gentlemen had assembled, thronging the spacious Hall to its utmost capacity. As the guests arrived an officer at the door took the name of each one and introduced them to Mrs. THORNTON. About 10 o'clock Prince ARTHUR arrived with his suite, and was met by Mrs. THORNTON at the head of the stairs and escorted into the hall and up its centre, the band playing "God Save the Queen" meanwhile. The British Minister had at first determined to issue but 400 cards of invitation, but increased the number to 800, and declined 900 applications. At least 600 or 700 ladies and gentlemen were present, many of the latter being officers of the army and navy. At 10 o'clock the President and Mrs. GRANT arrived, and as the band played a national air the Prince, who was conversing with some ladies at the east end of the hall, skipped across the room, and, meeting Mrs. GRANT at the head of the stairs, escorted her to the platform and handed her to the chair, President GRANT leading the way with the wife of the British Minister. The dancing commenced a little before 11:30 by a cotillion, one set only participating. The Prince led off with Mrs. GRANT, their vis-a-vis being Mr. FISH and Mrs. THORNTON. The set was further composed of Mrs. FISH and Mr. THORNTON, Mrs. BOUTWELL and General BELKNAP, Mrs. SHERMAN and Admiral PORTER, Mme. BLACQUE BEY and General SHERMAN, Mme. GARCIA and Mr. BOUTWELL, and Mme. CATACAZY and Mr. ROBESON.

THE GUESTS.

Among the most distinguished persons present were the President and his family, Chief Justice Chase and ladies, General Zeilin, Commander of the Marine Corps, and ladies; General Sherman and ladies, General Michler and ladies, Hon. Sayles J. Bowen, Mayor of Washington, and ladies; General Eli Parker and lady, Hon. Benjamin F. Butler and daughter, General O. O. Howard and ladies, General Balloch and ladies, Generals Babcock, Badeau and Porter and ladies, Colonel Douglass and lady, General Ward and lady, General Marcy and lady, Senator Cameron and ladies, Judge Fisher and ladies, Sir Edward Thornton and wife, and all the members of the Legation; Senators Sumner, Morton, Warner and Kellogg, and ladies; Mrs. ex-Senator Frelinghuysen; Hon. Richard Wallach, ex-Mayor of Washington; W. W. Corcoran, Vice-Admiral Porter and lady, General Banks and lady, Senator Williams and ladies, Judge Field and lady, Secretary Cox and lady Judge Dent and lady, Hon. Norman Judd and lady, Senator Cole and lady, Hon. Reverdy Johnson and lady, Senators Ramsey and Carpenters, and ladies, Secretaries Robeson and Boutwell, and ladies; General Ramsey and lady, Colonel John W. Forney and ladies, Senators Carl Schurz, Drake and Fenton, and ladies; Baron Lederer, the Austrian Minister; Don Manuel R. Garcia, Minister of the Argentine Republic, and Donna Garcia. Mr. Morris, the Minister Resident of Belgium, and secretaries Berghmans and Van Havie and ladies; the Count and Countess de Faverny; Frances Clare Ford and lady; Hon. W. Y. Ward, Peere Williams Freeman, and Lady Edmund D. V. Fane, S. Styleman, Le Strange and lady, General Alexander R. Tate and lady, Colonel Don Manuel Freyre and ladies, and Mr. Constantine De Catazy and ladies.

The toilettes of the ladies were elaborate and beautiful, the prevailing opinion being that it was the most superbly dessed ball given in the Capital.

ALASKA.

Resources of the Territory—The Fish and Fur Trade—Report of Captain Bryant, Special Agent of the Treasury.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—In compliance with a resolution of the Senate, the Secretary of the Treasury has transmitted to that body the report of Captain CHARLES BRYANT, late Special Agent of the Treasury Department, on the resources and inhabitants of Alaska. The report is very long and elaborate, giving the result of his personal examination of large portions of the Territory, including all the principal islands.

He expresses no opinion as to the actual value of the Territory, but describes minutely its characteristics and resources, giving prominence especially to the forests and fisheries, which he thinks may be made the basis of profitable business. Considerable space is devoted to showing that the natives possess a capacity for labor that will make them, under the direction of a more intelligent race, a valuable auxiliary in clearing the forests, and in aiding in all other departments of service incidental to life in a new country. After giving an interesting account of the habits of the fur seals on the Islands of St. Paul and St. George, Captain BRYANT makes the following recommendations in regard to the preservation of the seals and the protection of the natives in their rights without incurring great expense to the Government:

"The seals can be preserved only by placing it in the interests of the natives to guard them as the source whence their support is to be derived; and it is evident, on the other hand, that if deprived of the benefits of the seal fisheries they would have no means of subsistence. For this reason, therefore, that the best method of of securing the desired objects is to give to one responsible Company the right of purchasing on the islands, at proper prices, according to their marketable value, a stated number of skins—say for the present 100,000 annually; in return for which privilege said Company shall give security for the payment of a proper tax to the Government, and to provide for the natives by the sale of goods at reasonable fixed prices, or by the gratuitous distribution of supplies when necessary, and also to care for the sick and maintain schools on the islands for the education of the children."

The report estimates the number of male seals on the Island of St. Paul at 100,000, and of the females 1,000,000. The value of their skins in London is said to be $8 or $4 each. In a supplementary report, dated Jan. 10, 1870, Captain BRYANT shows that the statements of Special Agent WICKER, in regard to the number of skins taken during the past year, (in alleged violation of the law,) were erroneous and founded on false estimates. It is also stated that General GEORGE H. THOMAS, when he subsequently visited the islands, not only indorsed the action of the military officers in charge, but advised them to allow a still larger number to be taken, as the natives complained to him that their supply for food was insufficient for their comfortable support. The report concludes as follows:

"It is further stated by Mr. WICKER that a revenue of $300,000 may be annually derived from the seal fisheries, but he does not make it clear how this may be accomplished at the present time, when, according to the best authorities, only 100,000 skins should be annually taken, which are worth, in market, not more than $8 50 each. Whether Mr. WICKER has charged grave misdemeanors upon honest officers and ex-officers of the Government through malice or ignorance I do not know; but feeling a consciousness of having faithfully performed my duty in Alaska, and believing that Lieutenants BARNES and HENDERSON, the officers in charge of the islands, have been unjustly accused, I have deemed it my duty to submit the facts as above stated."

A Fearful Tragedy in Tennessee—Five Negro Murderers Shot by a Mob.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 27.—The five colored men who confessed the murder of Colonel COLEMAN, on Sunday night, were examined at Huntington on Tuesday before the Magistrates' Court, and sent to jail for trial at the May term of the Circuit Court. About 10 o'clock that evening about 200 horsemen rode into the town, took the prisoners from the jail, carried them a short distance and shot them. One of the negroes was not killed, but dropped and feigned to be dead; but upon attempting to escape he returned in search of food and was killed. The mob then rode off carrying with them the five dead bodies, which they buried. None of those who participated in the killing were masked.

STATE LEGISLATURES.

The Committees of New-Jersey Senate—Railroad Legislation in Maine.

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 27.—In the Senate this morning, the President announced the following Joint Committees:

On Treasurer's Accounts—Messrs. Gaskell, Cobb.
On State Prisons—Messrs. Brinkerhoff, Bettle.
On Lunatic Asylums—Messrs. N. D. Taylor, Belden.
On Libels—Messrs. Bird, Adams.
On Public Buildings—Messrs. Rice, Hopkins.
On Printing—Messrs. Edsall, Bettle.
On Passed Bills—Messrs. Corle, Adams.
On Commerce and Navigation—Messrs. Wiley, J. W. Taylor.
On Federal Relations—Messrs. Hopper, Nixon, Little.
On Soldiers' Home—Messrs. Bowne, Torrey, Brinkerhoff.
On Soldiers' Children's Home—Messrs. Woolverton, Hopkins, Corle.
On Reform School for Boys—Messrs Little, Cobb.
On Sinking Fund—Messrs. Wiley, Belden.

The following nominations were sent to the Senate to-day by Governor RANDOLPH, and were immediately confirmed:

Judges of the Court of Errors and Appeals—John Clement, Commissioner of the Sinking Fund—Peter D. Vroom and Charles S. Olden, Trustees of the State Normal School—Charles E. Hines, for the First District; Richard S. Field, Second District; Benjamin Williamson, Third District; Thomas Lawrie, Fourth District; Benjamin F. Randolph, Fifth District.

AUGUSTA, Me., Jan. 27.—The Committee on Railroads agreed this afternoon to report a general railroad act, by a vote of 7 to 3.

Massachusetts Anti-Slavery Society—Thirty-Sixth Anniversary.

BOSTON, Jan. 27.—The thirty-sixth annual meeting of the Massachusetts Anti-Slavery Society was held in Horticultural Hall to-day, with JOHN T. SARGENT, President, in the chair. Resolutions were adopted rejoicing in the near prospect of the ratification of the Fifteenth Amendment; stating that the voter in the position of the negro race needs land to make him independent, and also pecuniary aid; that in their opinion the nation owed this aid to the negro, and closing as follows:

Resolved, That we deem the precipitate admission of half-loyal States more than a grave political error, a heedless betrayal of the nation, and a foul wrong to the brave men who have given their lives, to the loyal masses who look to Congress for protection.

Colonel T. W. HIGGINSON deprecated giving aid to the freedmen, thinking it best to leave them to their own resources. He compared their condition to the Irish emigrant, who, he said, landed in New-York without a dollar, and in a year was controlling the destinies of the city.

Mr. WENDELL PHILLIPS, in speaking of the New-York Tribune, said he "would like to strip HORACE GREELEY and put him out upon the prairie and say to him, 'Root, hog, or die,' and leave him there to work out his own manhood on his favorite theory." He said what was wanted was not soldiers in the South but a man in Washington. "Place such a man as BEN BUTLER in the White House and the coon would come down." Senators TRUMBULL and ROSS were characterized by him as "half-baked lawyers and half-fledged statesmen, who tried to pick up the crumbs that fell at the feet of Senator SUMNER."

The meeting adjourned this evening.

Temperance in Maine—Meeting of the State Temperance Convention.

LEWISTON, Me., Jan. 27.—The State Temperance Convention assembled this afternoon. Hon. SIDNEY PERHAM, of Paris, was chosen permanent President, with one Vice-President from each county. Speeches were made by several gentlemen, including Hon. JOHN J. PERRY, of Oxford, who expressed his disapproval of Governor CHAMBERLAIN'S course, and advocated the holding of the Republican Party to its pledge for prohibition and its enforcement. Attorney-General FRYE, of Lewiston, favored sticking by the Republican Party, and took strong ground in favor of a State Police. He commented severely on Governor CHAMBERLAIN'S declaration that the Liquor laws are as well executed as the laws against theft and murder. An evening session was held. The Convention will continue in session through to-morrow.

Miscellaneous Telegrams.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 27.—Colonel DIGBY, of the British army, was married this morning to Miss LILLIE, daughter of W. S. GROESBECK. The ceremony took place at Mr. GROESBECK'S residence, Bishops ROSECRANS, Catholic, and McILVAINE, Protestant, officiating.

PITTSBURG, Penn., Jan. 27.—The annual Convention of the Grand Army of the Republic of the Department of Pennsylvania is in session in this city and largely attended. Major A. B. CALHOUN was elected Grand Commander; Captain G. S. WOOD, Senior Vice-Commander; CHARLES ALBRIGHT, Junior Vice-Commander. A banquet will be given by the Pittsburg Post.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Jan. 27.—Fire was discovered in the Sing Sing Prison stables yesterday, and before it could be subdued damage to the extent of $2,000 was done. The convicts aided in extinguishing the flames.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 27.—The National Hotel, on Race-street, above Third, was damaged by fire this morning. Its occupants, RAHN & CO., lose $6,500. The building is owned by C. C. ROBERTS, of New-York, whose loss is $1,500.... The City Gas Works have reduced the price of gas to $2 30 per 1,000 feet.

ROCKLAND, Me., Jan. 27.—Four stores, in different parts of the city, were last night broken into, and groceries and other articles to a considerable amount stolen.

CHICAGO, Jan. 27.—A meeting called last night at the Tremont House to form a Vigilance Committee, was turned into a broad farce by those present....Mrs. HAROLD, of Devilda, Jo Daviess County, Ill., recently became insane on religious matters, and on Tuesday morning attempted to cut her throat, but was prevented by one of her daughters. She made a second attempt, when another daughter, 15 years old, placed her hand over her mother's throat, and received a terrible gash. The mother then succeeded in cutting her throat from ear to ear, dying immediately.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Jan. 27.—One hundred and fifty workmen at the cutlery works of the J. Russell Manufacturing Company, at Greenfield, have struck on account of a reduction in wages.

The Rate and the Collection of the Income Tax.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

The true way to lay the income tax is, to assess it upon all incomes, great and small. A tax of one-half of one per cent. collected in this manner would yield more than the present tax of five per cent. By the present plan nine-tenths of the income of the people of the United States escapes taxation. Add up in one column all incomes over $1,000, and in another column all incomes without exception, and the difference is amazing.

Nobdy would complain of a tax of one-half of one per cent. It would be a trifle for the laborer, and the rich would pay more than they now do, because they would have less motive to render false returns.

Lay this United States tax as State and county taxes are laid. The State and county authorities do not say that a house worth $1,000 and over shall pay a tax, but all houses costing less than $1,000 shall be exempt; that a man worth $10,000 and over shall be taxed, but all citizens worth less shall go scot free. Universal suffrage and universal taxation should go together. This income tax favors a class. This is not democratic.

It may be objected that there would be a great many taxes of small amount to be collected. So there are in State and town taxation; but did you ever hear of a tax gatherer who declined to collect them? This country with its heavy debt has got to learn the art of the Old World, viz., to lay a very trifling tax, so far as percentage is concerned, over a very wide space. We have hurled the whole income tax upon the back of a small part of the people, and they feel it. Put it upon the back of all the people, and it would be cheerfully borne by all, because it would not be felt. Please to suggest this idea of a half per cent. tax upon all incomes, great and small.

That Fraudulent Advertisement.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

We read in your columns this morning Mr. Charles Nordhoff's remarks on what is termed by him "A Fraudulent Advertisement," the advertisement in question reading as follows:

"Mr. Charles Nordhoff, editor of the New-York Evening Post, says: 'My wife will have none but the Astral Oil.'"

The facts of the case are:

1. On the 1st of last September we received a letter from Mr. Nordhoff, a copy of which we give below:

THE EVENING POST, NEW-YORK, Sept. 1, 1869.

Chas. Pratt, Esq., No. 108 Fulton-st.:

SIR: Please send to Charles Nordhoff, Closter, N. J., (by Northern Railroad of New-Jersey,) a case of twelve cans of your safe oil—my wife has unfortunately seen your pamphlet and will have only your Astral Oil—and send the bill to me at the editor's rooms of the Evening Post, before 1 o'clock, and oblige yours truly, CHARLES NORDHOFF.

That portion of the letter which is in italics was used by us for an advertisement; but in copying for the papers we unintentionally wrote the words "none but the" for the words "only your," making the sentence, "My wife will have none but the Astral Oil," where it should have been,

"My wife will have only your Astral Oil."

VALUABLE SAW MILL PROPERTY FOR SALE IN BRAZIL.

A very favorable opportunity for a profitable investment in producing the most beautiful kinds of the variegated woods of Brazil is now offered to dealers in mahogany, rosewood, lignumvitæ, Brazilian cedar, cannela, pinnoba, and the celebrated araba, the richest veined cabinet woods of South America. The transportation of logs down the River Itajhay, by one branch of fifty miles and another of forty miles, affords great facilities for an abundant supply for the saw mill. The mill is located only 1¼ miles from the sea, in the Province of Santa Catharina, 45 miles distant from Desterro, the capital, and 260 miles south of Rio de Janeiro by sea. Vessels drawing eighteen feet of water can take cargoes from the saw mill wharf. The saw mill is 106 feet by 73 feet, with about six acres of land, containing orange and banana trees, and a lumement house 100 by 22 feet. Piles are driven to form a large boom for logs, and a log-way and apparatus made for drawing up the logs to the mill, together with a double-track railway for delivering the sawed lumber on shipboard. An office and storehouse are on the premises. There are two new large cylindrical flue boilers, with a return flue through each, made of the best flange iron, and a powerful steam engine, capable of sawing 12,000 feet of boards in a day; a 60-inch circular saw, spare saw, and extra movable teeth, slabbing and edging saw, best double leather belts, a good blacksmith's and carpenter's shop, turning engine and supply of vises and tools for repairs. The whole establishment is the most complete in South America. A new and first-rate large planing and grooving machine is in operation in the mill. A plan of the building, and samples of the beautiful available woods, may be seen on application to CRAWFORD ALLEN, Providence; or ALLEN D. BAILEY, No. 181 Pearl-st., New-York. Post Office address, Box No. 699.

FINANCIAL.

105 MILES COMPLETED.

ONLY 19 MILES

TO FINISH THE WHOLE LINE.

SEVEN PER CENT GOLD,

First Mortgage Bonds,

OF THE

Danville, Urbana, Bloomington and Pekin Railroad Company of Illinois.

This road is now VIRTUALLY COMPLETED, as there remained, at latest advices, but twelve miles of track to be laid, and the line will be opened throughout about Feb. 1, as the rails for its completion are now on the ground. Trains are running on the portion completed, and the earnings considerably exceed the anticipations of the Company. Seven-eighths of the bonds have already been taken by investors, and the present active demand will soon absorb the balance.

The road is 117 5-100 miles in length, and is the only East and West line connecting the cities from which it derives its name. No road has ever been built having more numerous valuable connections East and West. At Pekin it connects with Peoria, Burlington and Omaha; at Danville with the Toledo, Wabash and Western; at Indianapolis with the Pennsylvania Central, Baltimore and Ohio, and all the main lines East, making a NEW THROUGH DIRECT ROUTE in Illinois and Indiana from New-York, Boston, Philadelphia and Baltimore, to Peoria, Burlington, Quincy, Omaha and the Far West. Among the advantages, therefore, claimed for the road is its POSITION, directly on the line of intercoeanic travel, and in the track of the great movements of commerce from West to East.

THE LOCAL TRAFFIC must also be very large, as the road passes through one of the richest and most populous sections of Illinois, a State which has become famous for building up several of the most prosperous railroads in this country, through the immense local traffic contributed to them.

SECURITY OF THE BONDS.

The whole amount of bonds which can be sold is less than $18,000 per mile, on a road which has cost about $40,000 per mile; so that the total liability of the Company for interest each year will be only $140,000 in gold, a sum which is really insignificant when the character and location of the road is considered. In addition to the security furnished by a first mortgage upon the entire property of a first-class railroad 117 miles in length, the bonds have lately been further secured by a consolidation of this line with the Indianapolis, Crawfordsville and Danville Road, making over two hundred miles under one management, so that the bonds are not only a First Mortgage of less than $18,000 per mile on this 117 5-100 miles, but have been assumed by the Consolidated Company under the name of the Indianapolis, Bloomington and Western Railroad Company.

VALUE AS AN INVESTMENT.

The Bonds pay SEVEN PER CENT. IN GOLD, coupons being paid semi-annually, April 1 and Oct. 1, at the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company in New-York. The Bonds may also be registered at the holder's option.

THEY ARE FREE OF INCOME TAX.

THEY ARE CONVERTIBLE into stock, and as the stocks of several of the principal lines of Illinois, such as the Rock Island, Illinois Central, Chicago and Alton, Burlington and Quincy, have sold at the Stock Boards from above par to nearly 200 per cent., THIS PRIVILEGE OF CONVERTING THE BONDS INTO STOCK OF THE COMPANY AT PAR, GREATLY INCREASES THEIR VALUE, and should be highly appreciated.

PRICE 95

and accrued interest, in currency. Coupons, Governments, and all marketable securities received in exchange at the highest market rates, free of commission. We forward bonds by express, free of charge. Pamphlets, containing maps and circulars relating to the Road, furnished on application, by the undersigned, Financial Agents of the Company.

OF THE

Chicago, Danville and Vincennes RAILROAD.

|---|---|
| Total amount to be issued..... | $3,500,000 |
| Capital Stock paid in..... | 2,100,000 |
| Estimated Cost of Road (140 miles)..... | 4,500,000 |
| Estimated Earnings per annum..... | 2,639,306 |
| Net Earnings per annum..... | 879,768 |
| Interest on the Loan per annum..... | 175,000 |
| Amount of Bonds per mile of Road..... | 18,000 |
| Amount of Interest per mile..... | 1,260 |
| Amount of Net Earnings per mile..... | 6,284 |

The Bonds follow the completion of the Road—have the Union Trust Company of New-York as their Official Register and Transfer Agent—and are sold at present at 95 and accrued interest.

They bear examination and comparison better, it is believed, than any other now before the public, in the fixed and unchangeable elements of Safety, Security, and Profit.

They bear good interest—Seven per cent. Gold for forty years—and are secured by a Sinking Fund, and First Mortgage upon the road, its outfit, and net income, the Franchises, and all present and future acquired property of the Company.

They depend upon no new or half-settled territory for business to pay their interest, but upon an old, well-settled, and productive country;—assuming that a railroad built through the heart of such a region offers better security for both Interest and Principal than a road to be built through the most highly-extolled wilderness or sparsely-settled territory.

This Railroad possesses special advantages, in running into and out of the City of Chicago, an important Railroad and Commercial Centre; in running through a line of villages and old farming settlements in the richest portion of the State of Illinois; in running near to deposits of Iron Ore of great extent and value, and over broad fields of the best coal in the State—which mining interests are its monopoly. And besides the local and other business thus assured, there will be attracted to this road the considerable traffic already springing up "From the Lakes to the Gulf;" as with its Southern Connections it forms a Trunk Line 45 miles shorter than any other route from Chicago to Nashville.

These Bonds are therefore based upon a Realty and a Business that a few years must inevitably double—and competent judges say treble—in value.

Governments selling while the price is high, pay well if put into these Bonds, and Trust or Estate Funds can be put into NOTHING BETTER.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THIRTY-SIXTH CONGRESS—FIRST SESSION.
HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.
Report No. 291.
SAMUEL S. WOOD AND WILLIAM P. KIRKLAND AND OTHERS.
March 20, 1860.—Ordered to be printed.
"Mr. E. Joy Morris, from the Committee on Foreign Affairs, made the following REPORT.
The Committee on Foreign Affairs, to whom was referred the memorial of Samuel S. Wood and W. P. Kirkland, Commissioner and Solicitor on behalf of certain citizens of the United States, report:
It appears that the memorialists and other citizens of the United States and other nationalities, engaged in business at Greytown or San Juan del Norte de Nicaragua, organized in March, 1852, a municipal Government, subject to the paramount authority of any Power which might be decided to hold the government of the country to which Greytown belonged.
During the Spring of 1853, a certain building held by the Nicaragua Accessory Transit Company, at Punta Arenas, adjacent to said town, was removed by corporate order of the authorities of Greytown. Also, during the month of May, 1854, certain effects belonging to said Company were alleged to have been feloniously taken away by a servant of said Company and conveyed to said town, where it was alleged to have been withheld from said Company by said corporate authorities. And at the same time and in connection with this occurrence, two of the employes of said Company were arrested upon warrants emanating from said authorities, charged with having resisted a legal process and committing an assault, and have placed under bonds to keep the peace towards said authorities and citizens.
And afterwards, on the 16th day of May of that year, (1854,) a native citizen of the country was killed in the vicinity of said town, as is alleged, by a Portuguese, in the employ of said Company, whose arrest was attempted by the harbor of said town, upon a warrant of said municipal authorities; but was prevented by the interference of the United States Minister, then present, on his way home; and who, it is on the other hand charged, was arrested and rudely assailed by the citizens of said town.
There seems to have been a controversy between the authorities of Greytown and the Nicaragua Accessory Transit Company as to whether the Company had a right to enter the port of Greytown, without paying harbor dues, and to occupy certain lands without the consent of the authorities of Greytown.
Upon these two questions of the right to collect harbor dues, and the right to evade them, and the right to occupy certain lands, and the right to reject the Transit Company and the municipal authorities seemed to have quarrelled.
The memorialists alleged that the agents of the Transit Company wished to overthrow the authorities of Greytown for two objects: First, to relieve the Company from port charges. Second, to secure to certain employes of the Company possession and title to lands within the jurisdiction of Greytown acquired under an imperfect title.
In order to carry out their object, it is alleged that the President of the United States was informed that it was due to the protection of American interests there located, and in transit across the territory occupied by them, that Greytown should be destroyed and the inhabitants thereof dispersed.
Accordingly, the President sent the United States sloop-of-war Cyane to the harbor of Greytown, with instructions to demand that immediate indemnity in a large amount, should be made to the Nicaragua Transit Company, with proper apology for the insult offered the United States Minister, and satisfactory assurance" for the future good behavior of said community.
This demand was made, and is alleged not to have been complied with in consequence of the authorities having resigned their authority at and after the time of the interference of the United States Minister in the arrest of the man charged with murder; the few hours allowed for compliance are alleged to have been altogether inadequate to the purpose, and insufficient for the inhabitants to remove their effects; whereupon the commander of said vessel proceeded to bombard said town, and consumed by fire the the entire destructible property of its inhabitants to the value of $1,200,000.
The memorialists allege that the criminal charges made against said community are untrue, and were fabricated by its enemies for the purpose of deceiving and misleading the United States Government, and they charge that the entire course of the naval and civil representatives of the United States Government, then in Greytown, was irregular and unwarrantable; and that they are entitled to indemnity for the losses sustained in consequence of said destruction of their property.
Regarding it the duty of a powerful nation to do exact justice to a feeble and unprotected people, complaining of injury at its hands, and especially to examine whether citizens of the United States have been injured by their own Government, and acting upon false or insufficient information, the Committee recommend the adoption of the following resolution:
Resolved, That the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the President of the United States be authorized to appoint three Commissioners, whose duty it shall be to inquire:
1. Whether the authorities of Greytown had municipal jurisdiction over the place called Punta Arenas in January, 1853, and on the 16th day of May, 1854.
2. Whether the authorities of Greytown were at any time guilty of committing depredations on the property of the Nicaragua Transit Company.
3. Whether the authorities ever interfered and prevented said Company from regaining possession of the articles alleged to have been feloniously taken from said Company, or denied the proper process of law necessary to effect said recovery.
4. Whether said authorities ever unwarrantably or illegally arrested or imprisoned any of the agents, employes, or servants of said Company, the same being citizens of the United States.
5. Whether said authorities had municipal jurisdiction over the Harbor and River San Juan, where the murder was committed, and effort made to arrest the party alleged to have perpetrated the deed.
6. Whether the authorities of said town ever attempted to arrest the United States Minister, or treated him with violence, or in any manner offered any insult to the Government of the United States. If so, whether any apology has ever been made for the same.
7. To ascertain the amount and value of the property alleged by the memorialists to have been destroyed by said bombardment and fire, and to make such other inquiry as they may deem important to a thorough knowledge of the matter; and that the said Commissioners have power to conduct the investigations either in Washington, New-York, or Greytown, as they may consider necessary to arrive at a full understanding of the matter, and to report the result of said investigation to the President of the United States in time to be communicated to the next session of Congress for its further consideration.
5. To ascertain whether the memoralists, claiming to be citizens of the United States, at any time renounced their allegiance to the Government of the United States during their residence at Greytown, and whether they were actually citizens of the United States at the time of the bombardment of the same.
Be it further
Resolved, That the compensation of said Commissioners shall be $2,000 each, and that the expenses of witnesses shall not exceed $1,000."

Now, I think it is my duty to give some explanation. There was established in Greytown or San Juan del Norte a committee of seven persons formed in virtue of powers conferred by a great number of claimants, in order to initiate the claims for losses sustained through the bombardment. I was one of its members. We sent to Washington as Commissioners Mr. Samuel S. Wood and myself, William P. Kirkland, citizens of the United States, to represent us. The said Committee at Greytown collected from several persons funds for the expenses of the said Commissioners, with the condition to return the money lent with a retribution of so much per cent. when the claims should be paid, and after two years of work and great expenses they succeeded in getting from the Congress the preceding report.
In 1861, we could not continue our claims on account of the war with the Southern States, and after the war was finished we could do nothing on account of the question in Congress against the President, Mr. Johnson. Now, we considered it time to do something through the Press, the only means we have of giving publicity to this question.
Several of the members of the said Committee at Greytown have since died, and others are gone to other countries, so that the Committee has been dissolved. None of them lives there now.
Said report has been before the Congress since the year 1860. The President of the United States never sent to Greytown the Commission of three members to investigate the losses caused by the bombardment, &c.; we do not know the reason, but believe it was on account of the troubles caused by the impending war with the Southern States.
By the two pamphlets delivered to the honorable members of the Congress and Senate in 1859 and 1860, by Messrs. Wood and Kirkland, the reasons for which the City of Greytown was bombarded have been fully proved.
The claims of a great number of the English, Spanish, Italian, Swiss and German subjects must exist in the English Legation in Washington; the General Consul of H. B. M., James Green, Esq., in Greytown, by order of his Government, took the declarations of the losses suffered by them. Those of the French subjects must exist in the French Legation, and those of the United States, we believe, are in the hands of their own Governments.
We humbly pray the Government and the honorable members of the Congress to resolve this question, and to order that we be indemnified for the losses sustained through the bombardment, and we think we are right in expecting that the United States Government will take into consideration the interest of our money of which we have been deprived for the fifteen years which have elapsed since the bombardment.
We have entire confidence that the people and the Press of the United States, when informed of the report, will help us in the matter, because, had the war with the Southern States not supervened, it is probable that we should have been paid in 1861 or 1862.
Respectfully we ask for justice.
FELIX MANCHO.

MEETINGS.

NEW-YORK, Jan. 27, 1870.
CALL FOR A MASS MEETING.
The Committee on Ways and Means having resolved to offer a reduction of the tariff on imported cigars, to a specific tax of $2 a pound, while they do not propose to reduce or abolish the duty on Leaf Tobacco, and these proceedings being ruinous to all the interests of the manufacturers of Cigars, dealers in all kinds of Leaf Tobacco, to the journeymen Cigar makers, and the growers of Tobacco, all over the country, while on the other side none but a few importers of Havana Cigars would reap an immense benefit and profit, and having been called upon by a number of the leading Cigar manufacturers and Leaf dealers of New-York for immediate action, I hereby invite all manufacturers of Cigars, whether they be members of our Association or not, as well as all the Leaf Tobacco dealers, to attend a Mass Meeting at the Astor House on SATURDAY at 1 o'clock P. M., to take immediate steps to prevent such ruinous legislation.
I also enjoin all the fourneymen Cigar makers to get up mass meetings all over the United States, and to let their voice be heard, be not taken from their families by unjust legislation, detrimental to tens of thousands, and only favoring a few.
D. HIRSCH, President of the Cigar Manufacturers' Association of New-York.
JOSS STRAUTON, Secretary.

ALBANY.

Confirmations by the Senate—Drawing Room Cars—Representation in the State Medical Society—A Voice from Greene County—The Binghamton Inebriate Asylum—Inspectors and Canvassers to be Made Elective.

From Our Own Correspondent.

ALBANY, Thursday, Jan. 27, 1870.

Both Houses held brief sessions to-day, and the proceedings were unimportant. The Senate got into Executive Session at noon by the casting vote of Lieutenant-Governor BEACH, and, in pursuance of the programme agreed upon in caucus yesterday, confirmed all the Governor's nominations, with the exception of GEORGE W. MILLER, of Rochester, for Superintendent of Insurance; DANIEL B. HOWELL, of Rochester, for Bank Superintendent, and ISAAC MCCORMIC, Jr., and J. P. PIERSON, of Troy, for Commissioners of Capital Police. Several new nominees for Loan Commissioners were sent in by the Governor, but were not acted upon. Dr. CARNOCHAN, of New-York, for Health Officer, was the first name confirmed. The vote stood 16 to 13. A great many protests have been received here from physicians throughout the State against his confirmation, grounded mainly on his violation of what are called the "etiquettes" of the profession, and partly on his personal habits. Governor HOFFMAN, the son of a "regular" physician, they protest, ought not to have allowed himself to be forced into the nomination of a man who holds professional intercourse with "empyrics."

ABOUT DRAWING ROOM CARS.

The Senate to-day passed the Assembly resolution calling upon railroad companies of the State to report to the Legislature the amount of their receipts for extra fares collected from passengers for riding in what are called "drawing room cars," and by what authority they collected the same.

REPRESENTATION IN THE STATE MEDICAL SOCIETY.

Mr. KIERNAN introduced a bill to-day at the request of some physicians in New-York, extending to all Medical and Medico-legal societies of the State the privilege of being represented by delegates in the State Medical Society. The original act incorporating that Society permits no County Medical Societies to be represented.

O JERUSALEM!

Mr. VAN STEENBURGH, who represents the unterrified of Greene County in the Assembly, to-day offered the following resolutions which I transcribe verbatim, et literatim, et punctuatim:

Resolved, That the adoption of the 15th amendment to the constitution of the united States by the Free trade Southern States by duress & Military Coersion exercised under the most flagrant usurpation of Power by Congress is and Should be regarded by evry patriotic Citizen as nul and void and of no binding Obligation upon any Sovrign & independant State of this union.

Resolved, That the Enactment of laws by Congress taking from the Supreme Court of the united States the power to Call in question the Constitutionality of laws enacted by them is designed to Nulafy the national Judiciary a coordinate and independant branch of the Goverament in its most important functions and in effect converts the Government into an absolute despotism with no tribunal to Call in question or interfere with the exercise of any power by Congress.

Resolved, That the time has arrived when it is the futy of patriotic citizens to speak in no unmeaning terms, and declare their intentions, as we do now, to make any and evry sacrifice to defend the glorious Constitution of our country, which our forefathers made at establishing it. H. VAN STEENBURGH.

THE BINGHAMTON INEBRIATE ASYLUM.

Mr. JOHNSON, of Livingston, offered a resolution, which was adopted, asking the Speaker to appoint a Committee of three to investigate the condition of the Binghamton Asylum and Inebriates and report what it has cost the State; the number of patients reformed, the mode of treatment now practised, and whether any legislation is necessary with regard to the institution. The whole information called for, it is said, will be found in the Superintendent's report, which will be presented to the Legislature in a few days.

ELECTING INSPECTORS AND CANVASSERS.

Mr. JACOBS' bill, providing for the election by the people of Inspectors and Canvassers of Election in each election district of Kings County, was favorably reported by the Committee on Cities. A similar bill for New-York has been introduced by Mr. KIERNAN. Both bills provide for the representation of the minority in the Boards of Inspectors and Canvassers, the party having the majority in any district to be entitled to two Inspectors or Canvassers and the minority one.

THE STATE LEGISLATURE.

SENATE....ALBANY, Thursday, Jan. 27.

BILLS REPORTED.

The following bills were reported:

By Mr. TWEED—Chartering the City of Yonkers; also, the City of Rome.

By Mr. CALDWELL—To regulate and grade highways in New-Utrecht; also, confirming the acts of the Supervisors of Westchester and New-York.

By Mr. MURPHY—To lay gas pipe in New-Utrecht.

By Mr. PARKER—Allowing additional compensation to Department clerks.

By Mr. HARDENBURG—The General Canal Appropriation bill.

NOTICES OF BILLS.

Notice was given of the following bills:

By Mr. HARPENDING—Amending the act designating holidays with a view to paying notes, &c.

By Mr. CREAMER—Regulating fees of public offices.

BILLS PASSED.

The following bills were passed:

Amending the act relative to the Wyoming County Surrogate.

Amending the act incorporating the village of Potsdam.

SUPREME COURT AND COURT OF APPEALS.

Mr. PARKER called up the motion to reconsider the vote by which was passed the bill amending the act relative to preferred causes in the Supreme Court and Court of Appeals.

The Senate refused to reconsider and, in accordance with a previous motion, went into Executive Session.

PROCEEDINGS IN COMMITTEE.

On the opening of the doors the Senate, in Committee, disposed of the following bills as noted:

Amending the act to incorporate benevolent and charitable societies. Third readidg.

Providing additional compensation to the State Department clerks. Third reading.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

Among the bills introdnced were the following:

By Mr. GENET—To authorise a railroad in Lexington avenue, New-York.

By Mr. TWEED—Amending the charter of the Blind Institution; also, to alter the map or plan of New-York.

By Mr. PIERCE—To provide for learning the amount of money illegally collected by the Health Commissioners, and do provide for remitting the same.

By Mr. WOODIN—To encourage and aid the construction of railroads; also, to aid the construction of the Southern Central Railroad.

By Mr. WOOD—Amending the act relative to binding out orphans by the trustees of asylums; also, amending the revised statute conferring authority on Surrogates to appoint guardians.

By Mr. LORD—Repealing the Registry law.

By Mr. FROST—Enabling the voters of Newtown, Queens County, to vote in districts for town officers and for other purposes.

SLEEPING AND DRAWING-ROOM CARS.

Mr. WOOD called up the resolution instructing the Railroad Committee to inquire into the authority for the railroad companies charging extra for sleeping and drawing-room car accommodations.

Mr. CREAMER advocated the adoption of the resolution.

Mr. WOOD said the object of these cars was to evade the law fixing the rate of fare. The extra fare received did not go to the stockholders, but to a Ring within the directors of the road. If it went to the stockholders, there would not be so much objection.

Mr. TWEED hoped the Senate would go further, and take action on a more important matter in the control of these gigantic corporations. He referred to freight charges on railroads.

Mr. TWEED moved that the Committee report within twenty days. Agreed to.

Mr. WOODIN said it was well known that the railroad companies adopted measures to force passengers into these cars. He would rather see, however, a resolution that would embrace all the evils complained of against all the railroads in the State.

The resolution was adopted, and the Senate adjourned.

ASSEMBLY.

BILLS REPORTED.

The following are the most important bills reported:

By Mr. M. C. MURPHY—Amending the act making provision for the government of the City of New-York.

The Workingmen's Assembly.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 27.—At the Workingmen's Assembly to-day the act to prevent the packing of pastry, flour, &c., in old barrels, was adopted; also, a resolution against importing coolies. Mr. NORTON, late Treasurer of the Assembly, was expelled, he being deficient about $22. Other business was transacted. A mass meeting of workingmen, to hear addresses, was held in the Assembly Chamber this evening.

THE WILKES LIBEL CASE.

Conclusion of the Trial—Colonel Bruce Declared Not Guilty—Charge by Judge Bedford.

The trial of Colonel SAUNDERS D. BRUCE on a charge of publishing a libelous article against GEORGE WILKES in the Turf, Field & Farm, was resumed before Judge BEDFORD in the Court of General Sessions yesterday. The case was summed up by Mr. CLARK for the defence, and by District-Attorney GARVIN for the prosecution, the former claiming that the article which was published by his client could not be construed into a libel against the complainant. The following is the charge of Judge BEDFORD:

GENTLEMEN OF THE JURY: The defendant at the bar, SAUNDERS D. BRUCE, has been indicted by the Grand Jury for libel, which means, for the purpose of this case, the wanton and malicious publication of an article without justification. That portion of the alleged libelous article in which the District-Attorney asks for a conviction, is as follows:

"The second Sampson is an editor, and not a popular orator. He opened his infant eyes upon the earth heaven knows when or where. He grew to manhood, loving Governor SEWARD much because he refused to pardon a youthful indiscretion. For a while he made his home on the Pacific coast teaching the adventurous men of that golden land the value of law and order; winning immortality as the friend and heir of the murdered BRODERICK, and then returning to New-York with the spoils of friendship to establish a sporting paper, gaining fresh laurels by driving the genius of T. T. FORTUNE, a ruined man, into a drunkard's grave. Since then he has figured at many a prize fight, has been an honored guest at the palace of St. James without the knowledge of the Queen; assisted in carrying on a stupendous war by speculating in substitutes."

In every case of alleged newspaper libel the prosecution must prove the following facts: First, the publication of the article; secondly, that the accused, at the time of the publication of the article in question, was the proprietor and editor of the newspaper containing the article. The prosecution then rest their case. And the law throws the burden of proof upon the defence as to justification. And failing in this, the law declares the accused guilty of the charge, and then it becomes your duty to render a verdict accordingly. In order to make out the case for the people, the District-Attorney called the following witnesses:

Mr. C. A. FARNSWORTH, who testified that on the 4th of January, 1870, he purchased a copy of the Turf, Field & Farm, of the issue of Dec. 31, 1869; that the Turf, Field & Farm was published by SAUNDERS D. BRUCE.

Judge DOWLING was next called, and said that, in his opinion, the article in question referred to Mr. GEORGE WILKES. The Judge also testified that Mr. FOSTER came before him as complainant in behalf of another party; that Mr. FOSTER presented a paper to him, requesting him to read it and for him then and there to give his opinion whether the article was libelous or not. Judge DOWLING declined, giving for a reason that he might be called upon as a Magistrate to investigate the matter, and referred Mr. FOSTER to some attorney in order that affidavits might be drawn up, and then upon the presentation of these affidavits he would see whether there was sufficient to grant a warrant. The action of Judge DOWLING in this case is only one of the many instances of the high-toned, honorable manner in which he administers the criminal law of this City.

Recorder HACKETT is next called and says that in his opinion the article in question refers to Mr. GEORGE WILKES. The Recorder also tells us that Mr. WILKES labored hard with his pen and personal influence to make Mr. BUCHANAN United States Senator. Mr. HACKETT is called and says that the article in question in his opinion refers to Mr. WILKES, and that Mr. WILKES and BRODERICK were bosom friends.

Dr. QUACKENBOS says that he knows from Mr. BRODERICK that he had made his will before going to California, and that Mr. BRODERICK said that he had made Mr. WILKES his residuary legatee. Mr. MCGOWAN tells us that he has been a constant reader of Wilkes' Spirit, and that he had never read an article reflecting on the prisoner.

This is the testimony for the prosecution. The defence offers no testimony. Neither did the accused take advantage of the late statute allowing him to testify and offer testimony himself in his own behalf. But, gentlemen, it is my duty to tell you that the same statute that gives the accused the right to testify, declares that his omission to do so shall create no legal presumption against him. And now, gentlemen of the jury, I charge you that if you find on the evidence; first, the fact that SAUNDERS D. BRUCE was the editor and proprietor of the newspaper, entitled the Turf, Field and Field; secondly, that the article in question was published, as is alleged, and thirdly, that it is libelous in its character and refers to GEORGE WILKES; and fourthly, was not published with good and legal justifiable ends, then it becomes your duty to render a verdict of guilty. If, however, you have any reasonable doubt arising upon the evidence, (but not based upon surmise or hypothesis,) then that doubt is the property of the defendant, and he should be acquitted. If, however, you have no doubt, then promptly render such a verdict as the facts warrant. And now, gentlemen, in conclusion, I would remark, that we are living in an age in which science is progressing with rapid strides, and yet we are only seeing, as it were, "the beginning of the end." The two mighty powers of the age, the "Press" and the "Telegraph," are creating a new era. The latter publishes with the rapidity of thought the news. The former, the great exponent of thought, disseminates that news, broadcast over the world, and when just and discreet in its assertions, makes and unmakes. The Press has a mighty mission to fulfill. To assume responsibilities of a grave character. It may shape the destiny of men and nations. When the Press, as it is happy to say is the case with the majority of the journals of the country, is elevated, refined and dignified manliness. While, on the other hand, it is prostituted by a corrupt and venal spirit, it sinks to the level of the lowest and most degraded. In reference to the duties the public owe into political tribute, or to lampoon private citizens for refusing to countenance the corruption or robbing the city, or deliberately lets imagination run riot, and sensational creations may fill the treasury of editors when imitating, or perverting honest newspaper criticisms, or perverting the truth, then the Press is degraded, humiliated and demoralized. And now, gentlemen, once more to the case now before you. I expect, that I charge you, that if you find on the evidence, first, the fact that SAUNDERS D. BRUCE was the editor and proprietor of the newspaper in question, on the day in question, filled the Turf, Field and Farm; secondly, that the article in question was published, as is alleged, and thirdly, that it is libelous in its character and has reference to GEORGE WILKES; and fourthly was not published with good and justifiable ends, then it becomes your duty to render a verdict of guilty. If, however, you have any reasonable doubt arising upon the evidence, (but not based upon surmise or hypothesis,) then that doubt is the property of the defendant, and he should be acquitted. If, however, you have no doubt, then promptly render such a verdict as the facts warrant. And now, gentlemen, in conclusion, I would remark, that we are living in an age in which science is progressing with rapid strides, and yet we are only seeing, as it were, "the beginning of the end." The two mighty powers of the age, the "Press" and the "Telegraph," are creating a new era. The latter publishes with the rapidity of thought the news. The former, the great exponent of thought, disseminates that news, broadcast over the world, and when just and discreet in its assertions, makes and unmakes. MIDLAND BONDS.

SEVEN PER CENT GOLD,

FREE OF GOVERNMENT TAX,

ON THE

OF A

RAILROAD IN NEW-YORK STATE.

THE NEW-YORK AND OSWEGO

MIDLAND RAILROAD

extends from New-York City to the City of Oswego on Lake Ontario, a distance of 400 miles, including branches. The line is completed about 150 miles from Oswego, and regular trains running daily. Rapid progress is making in the balance of the line, and the entire work will be completed at the earliest practicable period.

SAFETY OF THE BONDS.

There is no railroad bond offered upon the New-York market which so clearly combines the elements of PERFECT SECURITY and a HIGH RATE OF INTEREST as this; in proof of which assertion the following simple facts are presented:

1. THE LOCATION OF THE ROAD, stretching from the City of New-York, across the Northern part of New-Jersey and the rich and populous MIDLAND COUNTIES OF NEW-YORK STATE to the nearest port on the great Lakes, is such, that it must command a large through and local traffic from the moment it is opened. The route from New-York to Buffalo will be shortened seventy miles, and to Oswego forty-five miles.

2. THE COST OF BUILDING THE ROAD is about $40,000 per mile, and $20,000 of that amount is necessarily furnished by stock subscription before a dollar is used from the sale of bonds, since the issue of the latter is positively limited to $20,000 PER MILE OF ROAD BUILT AND IN RUNNING ORDER.

OVER $6,000,000 have already been paid in on stock subscriptions.

3. The mortgage bonds on every railroad running out of New-York City are good, and interest is promptly paid on them.

4. THE TOTAL INTEREST LIABILITY of this great through route of railway between the Lakes and the Atlantic coast, 400 miles in length, will thus be only $560,000 per annum after the whole line is completed. On the most moderate calculations the average EARNINGS OF A SINGLE MONTH would far exceed this sum.

THE RATE OF INTEREST.

These bonds pay seven per cent. in gold, free of United States Income tax, and this with gold at 120 is equal to about 8½ PER CENT. A YEAR. No rational person could expect a SAFE INVESTMENT, WITHIN OUR OWN STATE to be offered on more liberal terms than these.

THE BONDS.

The bonds have 25 years to run; are issued in denominations of $1,000; bear Seven Per Cens. Interest in gold, free of Income Tax; are Coupon or Registered, with interest, payable semi-annually in New-York, on the 1st of January and 1st of July.

PRICE: PAR AND ACCRUED INTEREST.

DEATH OF JAMES S. HENNESSY, Chairman Democratic Committee.

A charge of receiving and removing contraband property was made yesterday in the United States Commissioner's office, against JOHN and GERMANUS, named JOHN H. BRETTMAN and JOHN LOEBE. It was alleged that thirty-two gross of matches were seized at BRETTMAN'S place at No. 144 Duane-street, in April last, for being unstamped, and that the property was left in possession after he had given bonds to hold it to await the action of the Court; that subsequently he sold or transferred the matches to LOEBE, of No. 427 West Fifty-fourth-street, and that the latter consumed them, so that the Marshal was unable to take possession of the property after it had been condemned by the Court. Both prisoners were held for examination.

CHAS. NORTON, of No. 47 New-Bowery, was arrested yesterday by Officer CORK, of the Fifth Ward, who found him concealed in the basement of No. 381 Greenwich-street, occupied by JOHN MONTGOMERY. As a tub of butter, valued at $20, was missing, NORTON was arraigned before Alderman MOONEY and held for trial.

Professor B. WATERHOUSE HAWKINS will lecture at Irving Hall on Saturday evening next, for the benefit of disabled soldiers and sailors, on "The Age of Dragons." Professor HAWKINS has been engaged to deliver a course of lectures before the Smithsonian Institute, in Washington, and the present occasion is the only one the public of New-York will have of hearing him this winter.

ELLEN KANE, aged 50 years, a homeless woman, fell down an embankment on Saturday in Seventieth-street, and died yesterday at Bellevue Hospital of her injuries.

JAMES DUMPHY, aged 40, residing in One Hundred and Fourth-street, near Third-avenue, was fatally injured on Wednesday by a stone falling on his head while at work in a sewer on the Boulevard. Death occurred at Bellevue Hospital during the night.

CHARLES DIAMOND, well known in local political circles, who is the proprietor of the Santa Claus Saloon, at the corner of Bleecker and Laurens streets, was yesterday brought before Commissioner SHIELDS on a charge of passing counterfeit fifty cent currency stamps of the new issue. Policeman CRAWFORD was the complainant. DIAMOND was held in $500 bail for examination, Alderman FLYNN becoming his bondsman.

A search for the wreck of the pilot boat A. T. Stewart, was made on Wednesday, by Colonel MEEHAN, by direction of General JOHN NEWTON, United States Engineers. Colonel MEEHAN was assisted by JAS. CALLAHAN, Sandy Hook pilot. The wreck could not be found, however, having probably been broken up by the bark H. J. Booth, which struck upon it on the 30th of December last.

Mr. JESSE VANDERPOEL, a well-known lawyer, died at his residence in this City on Wednesday evening. He was for several years connected with the District-Attorney's office as Deputy District-Attorney, and was very popular with Mayor HALL, Judge GARVIN, Recorder HACKETT, Judge BEDFORD and Mr. GEO. W. BLUNT, Jr., who were on intimate official and friendly relations with Mr. VANDERPOEL. The deceased was recently appointed Probate Clerk under Surrogate HUTCHINGS.

A fire occurred at 9:30 o'clock last night in the sub-cellar premises No. 43 Barclay-street and No. 48 Park-place, occupied by JOSHUA M. BEACH & Co., commission merchants and auctioneers. The flames were confined to the subcellar among a quantity of packed crockery. Damage to stock $3,000; insured. The building was damaged to the extent of $600.

In the case of JOHN W. LALOR and FREDERICK KUNER, charged with robbing a Frenchman named DURANGER, residing in Tenth-street, of valuable laces and other goods, under pretence that they were smuggled, representing that they were Custom House officers, after a tedious examination of several weeks, the defendants were yesterday held to await the action of the United States Grand Jury.

During the past week Marshal TOOKER has recovered from swindlers by the envelope game and returned to the owners over $3,000.

A kerosene lamp exploded yesterday in the dwelling of ALEX. HERMAN, at No. 125 East Fourth-street, when a damage of $100 was occasioned. Insured for $1,500 in the Continental.

BROOKLYN.

CHARLES CANTLACH, a liquor dealer, was yesterday, by United States Commissioner JONES, held for the action of the Grand Jury, in bail to the amount of $800, charged with carrying on the business of a retail liquor dealer without having paid the special tax.

MICHAEL KELLAHER, a contractor, engaged in building a sewer at the corner of Conover and Walcott streets, dropped dead yesterday afternoon from heart disease.

The annual meeting of the Graham Old Ladies' Home was held yesterday. The Treasurer reports receipts for the year, $13,218 43; expenditures, $10,486 58. There are forty-six old ladies in the Home.

PETER BISHOP, found guilty of committing an assault upon EUGENE CRUGER, was yesterday fined $30 by Police Justice WALSH.

At the regular meeting of the Kings County Council U. L. A., held Jan. 26, 1870, the following gentlemen were elected officers for the present year: Colonel J. W. JONES, President; Colonel George W. Stillwell, Vice-President; Solomon Spitzer, Assistant Vice-President; Thomas Doane, Recording Secretary; John P. Ducas, Assistant Recording Secretary; General William De Lacy, Corresponding Secretary; Rodny Lane, Treasurer; William Davis, Assistant Treasurer; George Buckridge, Marshal; Henry A. Spear, Herald.

LONG ISLAND.

The following persons have been elected officers of Montauk Lodge No. 533, I. O. of G. T., Greenport: Rev. E. Stratton, W. C. T.; Jennie Skinner, W. V. T.; W. H. Clark, Jr., W. S.; Gertrude Buckley, W. A. S.; J. W. Preston, F. S.; A. Clark, W. T.; G. H. Case, W. M.; Ida Corwin, W. D. M.; R. A. Hawkins, W. I. G.; Edwin Rowland, W. O. G.; Annie Skinner, R. H. S.; Annie Adams, L. H. S.

At a horse race at Seatuck one day last week one of the horses fell and broke his neck. An altercation followed when a man named PITTSLEY assaulted Dr. BEEBE, beating him in a brutal manner. A warrant was issued for his arrest but PITTSLEY absconded and has not been heard from.

The funeral of A. G. SILLIMAN, for twenty years Justice of the Peace of Flushing, took place yesterday at 2 P. M. The services were held at St. George Episcopal Church, Flushing. Rev. CARPENTER SMITH preached the sermon. There was a very large attendance.

Ground was broken at Astoria, Wednesday, on the Waldron farm, the recent purchase of the German Cabinet-makers' Cooperators' Society, for a large hotel, 50x180 feet. A shooting gallery six hundred feet long is to be attached. The hotel will be located in a large grove.

Wednesday evening those property owners of Flushing opposed to the recent move for macadamizing the village streets and bonding the town, held a meeting at the Town Hall. An election has taken place on May 9, at which the following questions are to be voted upon: A proposition to raise $75,000, by bonding the town, for the purpose of macadamizing the streets; a proposition to raise $150,000 for the same purpose.

DENNIS CARLL, one of the constables of the town of Flushing, has been arrested for a misdemeanor in having been bribed to release a prisoner.

NEW-JERSEY.

In the Court of Quarter Sessions, in session at Hudson City yesterday, JAMES LAUGHRAN and JOHN CONNOLLY were arraigned on a charge of having fired the premises, No. 214 Grand-street, in Jersey City, in which they had an interest, for the purpose of defrauding the State Insurance Company, and committed to the County Jail to await trial. THOMAS LAUGHRAN, charged with having advised the act, was held in $2,500 bail. STEPHEN WILLIAMS and THOMAS HENRY pleaded guilty to a charge of breaking by day and entering, with intent to rob, and were remanded for sentence.

ROBERT MCCORMACK, a 12 year old lad, was, yesterday, held by Recorder MARTINDALE, of Jersey City, on suspicion of having entered the office of the Franklin Boiler Works, on Wednesday, and stolen from a coat hanging up in the office, $100 worth of valuables. MCCORMACK accused one KELLY, for whom the Police are now looking, of having committed the act while he looked on.

JAMES BONCHEN was yesterday held by Recorder ALDRIDGE, of Hudson City, in $1,000 bail to answer a charge of having, in company with two others, knocked down and attempted to rob PATRICK BRATTON, in Bergen wood-avenue, in Hudson City.

Recorder ALDRIDGE, of Hudson City, yesterday held JOHN MULQUEEN in $1,000 bail to answer a charge of assault and battery and mayhem. He had been noisy and taken into custody. While being conducted by an officer to the Station House, he bit the officer severely in one of his hands.

JOSEPH WARD was yesterday taken before Justice WHITE, of Hoboken, on a charge of having neglected to provide for his family. He was offered a residence in the County Jail as an alternative to giving security for the proper support of his family in future.

Some foul play is apprehended by the people of Irvington, in consequence of the finding of a man's hat, an empty pocketbook and a whip there a day or two ago.

Dr. JOSEPH L. WADE, of Irvington, N. J., has been appointed Assistant Assessor of the Fifth District of New-Jersey.

JOHN MARCUS, WILLIAM STEVENS and MARCUS DUBOIS were placed on trial yesterday, in the Hudson County Court, on a charge of having entered the dwelling house of CARLES S. [illegible] in Jersey City, and stolen jewelry and money. Marcus was convicted on the indictment charging them with breaking and entering by day with intent to steal. They were sentenced each to ten years in the State Prison. DUBOIS was discharged upon technical grounds.

The hatters of Newark and Orange struck recently for an advance of wages, but returned to work, after two days' idleness, at the old rates.

A youth named SCHOEFFER, aged 17 years, who ran away from his home in New-York ten years ago, and subsequently lost all traces of his parents' residence, was recovered by them in Newark on Wednesday.

An old man named MORITZ LINDER, of East Newark, yesterday procured the arrest of a man named FRANZ SPEILING, whom he
